CAMPBELL'S CLOSE.

A Rousing Meeting in Hamilton County Last Night.

Cincinnati, Nov. 3.—The democratic demonstration here last night was an immense affair. Music hall was as crowded as at the McKinley meeting on last Saturday night, and there were several thousand outside who were addressed by local speakers. Gov. Campbell and Hon. John G. Carlisle, of Covington, made the speeches in Music hall. Gov. Campbell directed his remarks to the laboring men and Hon. John G. Carlisle discussed the tariff. The meeting did not break up till midnight. Campbell was given a most enthusiastic ovation.

TRAIN ROBBERS ARRESTED.

Denver, Col., Nov. 3.—The principal actors in the Turkey Creek train robbery of the Rio Grande express, near Canon City, a month ago, have been captured and are now in the county jail here. The men are Peg-Leg Eldridge, Jim Evans and a man named Burns. Other arrests are expected this week, as it is understood Eldridge has made a confession. McCoy, the leader of the gang, is already in prison serving an 18 years sentence.

GONE TO THE JURY

The Case of the People Against High Taxes.

The Mighty Ballot is Dropping in the Box

And the Fate of Many Men Will Be Sealed.

Fine Weather in Nearly All the States.

What the Several States Are Voting for and Forecasts of Results—Telegraphic Information from All Over the United States.

Cincinnati, Nov. 3.—Election day dawned cold and cloudy. During the early hours voters were numerous around the various booths, and it was apparent that the heaviest vote ever polled in Hamilton county would have been recorded if the old system of balloting was still in vogue.

Many workingmen who were at the polls found they could not vote without losing half a day, dropped out of line and left the polls.

There is intense interest manifested in the election, but the vote will in all probability fall short many hundreds from the registration list in this county owing to the new process of balloting.

In some of the west end wards Gov. Campbell is being scratched. Especially is this the case in the Sixteenth. Louis Reemelin, who was a member of the board of public improvements at the time it was abolished, is making a bitter warfare on the governor.

The universal complaint—coming as it does from every ward and precinct—is that the voter who retires to his stall has insufficient light to decipher the ballot, and is hampered in doing what scratching he may wish to do. On this account it appears that many straight tickets were cast when otherwise energetically criss-crossed ballots would have been handed in.

At Columbus.

Columbus, O., Nov. 3.—Six o'clock this morning found groups of voters around the polls in this city. Owing to the slow voting under the Australian system the blockade in many places assumed a serious form and business men and clerks became alarmed lest they should be shut out by the blockade if they deferred voting until later in the day.

The result was that every one stuck to his position in line and an unusually large vote was polled by 10 o'clock in consequence.

In most cases more than half of the entire registered vote was cast by that hour. The new law is working satisfactorily in the more intelligent wards, but in the lower quarter there is considerable delay owing to the ignorance of the voters. Nothing can be told at this time as to the relative proportions of the vote. Both parties seem to be turning out strong.

Rain in Northern Ohio.

Columbus, O., Nov. 3.—Reports show that it is clear and cold all over the state with the exception of Cleveland and the northwest. In those parts it has become warmer followed by a slight rain.

The vote polled at all points is quite large.

There is but little attention paid to the questions on constitutional amendment.

At Tiffin.

Tiffin, O., Nov. 3.—(Special)—No election ever held in this city passed off so quietly as the one being held to-day.

The Australian ballot is hailed as a beacon by all electors, and it has brought out an unusually large vote, two-thirds the entire vote being cast at two o'clock. Both parties seem confident on the result in the state.

NEBRASKA.

Democrats Remained Out of the Fight—A Peculiar Situation.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 3.—Great interest is felt in the election in this state; not because of the high offices at stake—for only a supreme judge and regents of the university are to be elected—but because it is to determine whether or not the farmers' alliance or independent party is to gain political supremacy in Nebraska.

In one respect this year presents a situation without parallel—the democratic party is without candidates and is allowing the state to go by default.

This is all the more remarkable when it is remembered that but one year ago their candidate, Boyd, was elected governor of the state and was only deprived of his high office by a partisan supreme court. The present action of the democratic party is due to the refusal of their nominee for supreme judge to make the race, whereupon their candidates for regents were alike withdrawn and the field left to the republicans, independents and prohibitionists.

The republican state convention nominated A. M. Post for supreme judge and Charles Marph and H. B. Shumway for regents, the independents nominated J. W. Edgerton for supreme judge and A. D'Allemand and A. E. Hadley for regents, and the prohibitionists nominated Mrs. Ada Bittenbender for supreme judge and Rev. Wm. Goest and Mrs. Caroline M. Woodward for regents.

All parties admit that the contest between the republicans and farmers or independent party will be very close, the prohibition vote being naturally very light.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Five Full Tickets and Plenty of Enthusiasm in All Parties.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 3.—The election in Massachusetts is for governor and other state officers and executive council and a legislature.

Two amendments to the constitution are also to be voted upon, one abolishing the poll tax as a prerequisite for voting, and the other making a majority of members a quorum in each branch of the legislature.

There are five tickets in the field for state officers, republican, democratic, prohibition, people's and socialist-labor, as follows:

Republican—For governor, Charles H. Allen of Lowell; lieutenant-governor, Wm. H. Haile, of Springfield; treasurer, George A. Marsden, of Lowell; secretary of state, William M. Olin, of Boston; auditor, John W. Kimball, of Fitchburg; attorney-general, Albert E. Pillsbury, of Boston.

Democratic—For governor, Wm. E. Russell, of Cambridge; lieutenant-governor, John W. Corcoran, of Clinton; secretary of state, Elbridge Cushman, of Lakeville; treasurer, James S. Grinnell, of Greenfield; auditor, Wm. D. Trefry, of Marblehead; attorney-general, Geo. M. Stearns, of Chicopee.

Prohibition—For governor, Charles E. Kimball, of Lynn; lieutenant-governor, Augustus R. Smith, of Lee; secretary of state, Alfred W. Richardson, of Springfield; treasurer, Samuel B. Shapely, of Boston; auditor, Wm. O. Armstrong, of Boston; attorney-general, Wolcott Hamlin, of Amherst.

People's—For governor, Henry Winn, of Malden; lieutenant-governor, Wm. J. Shields, of Boston; secretary of state, Jos. D. Cable, of Westfield; treasurer, Thos. A. Watson, of Braintree; auditor, William O. Wakefield, of Lynn; attorney-general, Herbert McIntosh, of Worcester.

Socialist-Labor—For governor, Henry W. Robinson, of Boston; lieutenant-governor, G. R. Pearce, of Boston; secretary of state, Edward J. Theinert, of Holyoke; treasurer, Charles Fried, of Boston; auditor, Squire E. Putney, of Somerville; attorney-general, Jas. Waldock, of Boston.

The campaign has been one of the most vigorous ever fought in Massachusetts. In some respects it has resembled the one in which Gov. Robinson defeated Gov. Butler in 1883. In that year the republicans put forth every possible effort to recover the governorship, which had slipped away from them because of a careless nomination and lethargy.

This year history is repeating itself, save that national issues have been made to play an important part in the contest, and Gov. Russell, instead of antagonizing anybody, has made a very satisfactory administration, and is so universally liked that his name has been frequently applauded at republican rallies.

Betting, as between Allen and Russell, is about even, and in view of the latter's great popularity, the general satisfaction with his administration, the steady, natural growth of the democratic party in the state, and the equally steady drift in favor of lower tariffs, the chances seem to be about even.

New Bedford, Mass., Nov. 3.—The vote is light and not much interest is taken in the result.

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 3.—There is a large vote. Both sides are working hard.

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 3.—The vote is larger than last year, and both sides are claiming that the increase is in their favor.

NEW YORK.

An Exciting Campaign Has Closed Favorable to Democracy.

New York, Nov. 3.—Jacob Sloat Fassett, the republican candidate for governor, has developed fighting qualities of the first order. He has spoken in almost every county and in all the chief cities.

The keynote on which he has rung all the charges, has been that the Tammany tiger must be slain in his lair, and that the vicious influence of Tammany hall, which, having the city of New York at its feet, seeks to conquer the state and nation in turn, must be overthrown and the endangered liberties of the people preserved by returning the republican party to power.

The democratic war cry has been that "Platt and his tool Fassett" were chiefly responsible for the failure of New York city to opture the world's fair, and that the party they represent should therefore be disciplined by defeat.

Roswell P. Flower, the democratic candidate for governor, is lauded for his efforts to secure the fair for New York, and his speeches in congress are quoted in support of his candidacy.

Little prominence has been given to state issues, save in the bandying of words over the failure of the census bill (and the consequent redistricting of the state) by reason of disagreement as to its terms between the governor and the republican majority in the state senate.

Both parties profess confidence of victory. The republicans base strong hopes of success on the healing of the breach between the Platt and the Warner Miller forces, and on the entire harmony in the party from one end of the state to the other. Republicans of both factions have worked shoulder to shoulder everywhere.

Ex-Senator Platt predicts a majority of 17,000 for Fassett. Other prominent leaders make predictions of from 5,000 to 20,000. On the other hand, the democratic leaders predict Flower's election by a plurality of from 12,000 to 60,000. Betting on the result has been very quiet. Here in New York slight odds have been given in favor of Flower. In 1888 Gov. Hill had a plurality of 19,171 in a total vote of 1,311,972—the largest ever cast. Above the Harlem river Miller had a plurality of 66,158; below the Harlem Hill's plurality was 85,329. The republicans are counting on greatly increasing their plurality above the Harlem because of Fassett's popularity and party harmony, and are counting on a decrease of the democratic plurality below the Harlem because of the indifference or disaffection of the mugwumps, or because the county democracy received the cold shoulder at the Saratoga convention. Democrats, on the other hand, point to their majority on the congressional vote last year of over 78,000; say that there are no indications that the republicans can increase their plurality above the Harlem.

But it is not the state ticket alone that is in the balance; the complexion of the legislature is also to be decided. The senate and legislature is also to be formed and both parties are making a fierce fight for the control. The senate has 32 members. Of the present body 19 are republicans. In order, therefore, to create a tie and thus give the lieutenant-governor the casting of the vote, the democrats must make a net gain of three members.

But the prospects are not flattering for a change in the political majority in the senate, and the republicans are confident of gaining at least one seat now held by a democrat.

The assembly now stands 68 to 60 in favor of the democrats, and they expect to retain control of this branch of the legislature. But there are several districts which last year returned democrats which are likely to elect republicans this year, so that the democrats must make gains of new seats to hold their own.

An additional reason for making an active canvass for members of the legislature is that the present senate will vote for a United States senator in 1893 to succeed Mr. Hiscock. In view of this fact, and in view of the direct influence party success will have upon the presidential election next year the result of to-morrow's election in New York state is fraught with interest, not only to the people within its borders, but to the whole United States.

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 3.—A full vote is being polled.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 3.—A heavy vote is being cast here. Roads and weather good.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The vote is a large one. Democrats concede 700 majority in the county.

Oswego, N. Y., Nov. 3.—Weather cool and cloudy. A full vote is being polled on both sides.

Elmira, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The vote is unusually large and the result very uncertain.

Pokeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 3.—A big vote is being polled in a very orderly fashion.

Newburg, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The vote is big and there are many challenges, especially of men who have obtained positions at Sing Sing under Warden Brown. The warden himself was challenged, but swore his vote in. There is cutting on both tickets.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The vote is large and the new system works better than last year. There is little cutting.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The voting began early and is large. Democrats claim 10,000 majority for Flower in Kings county, but republicans say it will not exceed 6,000.

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 3.—Party feeling runs high and there have been a number of fist fights at the polls. The vote is large.

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The election proceeds quietly. There is considerable cutting of both Fassett and Sheehan. The vote is large.

NEW JERSEY.

State Senators Are On the Ticket For Election To-day.

Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 3.—State senators are to be elected in seven counties, and, as they hold office for three years, they will vote for a successor to United States Senator Rufus Blodgett, who is a democrat. Four of these counties—Hudson, Hunterdon, Middlesex and Sussex—are always democratic. The republicans hope to carry the other three—Burlington, Cape May and Passaic. In the assembly they expect to gain at least two members, those from the first and second districts of Monmouth, where there is democratic dissension.

VIRGINIA.

The Democratic Farmers Will Have No Opposition.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3.—The election contest in this state is for the purpose of selecting the entire house of delegates, consisting of 100 members, and one-half of the senate, namely 20. There is no state question involved in this election, and the republicans, as a party, have refrained from placing candidates in the field, although here and there a republican or independent may be found. The democratic candidates in the main are alliance men, and, while some of them were nominated for that reason, others were not. They are simply known to the party as democrats.

It is safe to say that the democrats will carry at least 70 counties in the state and a majority of the senatorial districts, but a majority of those so elected will probably be in sympathy with the alliance.

Light Vote.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3.—Reports received here show that fair weather prevails throughout Virginia. The election here is progressing quietly, and up to noon a light vote has been polled. The election is for 21 members of the senate and 100 members of the house of delegates.

The democratic state committee claim that the democrats will elect 70 out of 100 members of the house delegates, and 17 out of 21 senators. Of 19 hold-over senators, 13 are democrats and six are republican and alliance.

The opposition this year to the democrats is the farmers' alliance, the republicans having but few candidates in the field. Of the alliance candidates, more than one-half are pledged to enter the democratic caucus if elected.

MARYLAND.

Every Elective Office in the State to be Filled To-day.

Baltimore, Nov. 3.—Every elective officer in Maryland from governor down to and including the very least, will be voted for to-day. The canvass of the great number of names will need a great deal of time, and as many of the polling places are far away from telegraph office or railway station the returns from the whole state are not likely to be all in before Thursday.

The democrats endeavored to force upon the voters the consideration of national politics. The republicans would not follow the lead of the democrats, although there have been times when the tariff was well aired and discussed. All men of all parties concede the election of Frank Brown (dem.) for governor. The best that even the sponsers for his opponent, Mr. Van Nort, (rep.) ever claimed was that he would reduce the democratic majority. Fifteen thousand majority is claimed for Mr. Brown. The fight is as hot in the counties as it is in the city of Baltimore. Democrats are claiming all the counties, and only concede that there is doubt about Charles, Calvert, St. Marys and Allegheny. Republicans express themselves certain of Wicomico, Cecil and Carolina counties on the eastern shore, and of Garrett, Allegheny, Washington and Frederick.

KANSAS.

An Interesting Contest Taking Place in the Far West.

Topeka, Ks., Nov. 3.—The election in Kansas this year is not fraught with the general interest that the politics of the mercurial state usually inspires.

Not only is it an off-year election, but it is an election at which is not even to be seen a single state officer. Yet it must not be understood that it is an election which is without interest within the state.

Both of the leading parties are making a determined effort to break the strength and stunt the growth of the Farmers' alliance or people's party. Particularly is that true of the republican party, but in some localities the democrats, as the minority party, have thought it expedient to effect fusions with the farmers' party.

With the exception of nine district judges, the campaign is purely local, confined to the election of county officers; but both state central committees have been daily sending out a score of speakers into every nook and corner of the state.

The republicans feel that it is a question of supreme importance that they should carry many of the county elections, and thus say to the east and to the entire nation that the state of Kansas is once more safely in the republican ranks.

The democrats are naturally not particularly anxious to aid republicans in their wishes in this respect, and it was probably for this reason that the democratic state central committee at a recent meeting gave a quasi indorsement to various local fusions with the people's party. This action of the committee, has, however, been repudiated by many leading democrats who insist that the party policy should be to pull every ex-democrat out of the alliance party. The particular interest in this election therefore, is the strength that will be developed by the people's party—a party that swept the state a year ago and the hopes to deliver the vote of the state for a third party presidential candidate in the electoral college next year.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Both Parties are Hopeful of Success at The Polls.

Pittsburg, Nov. 3.—The state campaign has been rather quiet. Being an off year no unusual effort has been made and a large vote is not expected. The candidates to be voted for are attorney general and state treasurer. The republicans are claiming the election of their ticket by the usual off year majority, while the democrats, imbued with the success of last year and the reported disaffection in the opposition ranks caused by the Bardsley disclosures, are hopeful of success.

Pittsburg, Nov. 3.—This is an ideal election day. The weather is cool and slightly cloudy. An unusually large republican vote will be polled. The state issues seem almost completely forgotten in the extremely bitter fight that is being waged between the "regulars" and "straight-outs" on the local republican judiciary ticket.

In some districts the republican managers failed to supply the Gregg and Morrison ticket while in others the state ticket is being openly traded by both factions of the republicans.

The straight-out republican organization, which is supplemented by the democrats who are resenting the failure of their party managers to place a regular democratic ticket in the field, has developed surprising strength, and all sorts of schemes are introduced to offset this unanticipated feeding.

In some districts, where ticket holders have been "induced" to abandon their work, district messenger boys in uniform have been detailed to perform that service. They are not molested, and their presence at the polls presents a novel feature.

IOWA.

Four Political Parties Have Full State Tickets in the Field.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 3.—The most exciting off-year campaign in the history of Iowa politics has closed. For three months the war has been unremittingly waged in every precinct and school district of the state, and all parties are exerting every effort to bring out their full vote.

A full state ticket is to be elected in Iowa this year and four political parties have candidates in the field. Horace Boies, the present incumbent, is the democratic candidate for governor; Hiram C. Wheeler, the republican candidate; A. J. Westfall, the people's candidate; and Isaac T. Gibson, the prohibition candidate.

The three salient issues in Iowa politics this year have been the temperance question, the tariff question and the silver question.

MISSISSIPPI.

Nobody Is Betting That It Will Go Republican.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 3.—In this state there will be held the first election under the new constitution to-day. The legislature to be elected will hold for four years, and will elect two United States senators, but as most of the candidates have been instructed for Walthall and George, they will doubtless be their own successors.

Three railroad commissioners will also be elected. There is but little opposition to the democratic nominees throughout the state. The alliance, however, nominated candidates for the legislature in a few counties.

COLORADO.

The Australian Ballot To Be Tried for the First Time.

Denver, Col., Nov. 3.—The state campaign closed here with a great democratic rally at the Coliseum hall, which was attended by 6,000 people.

Speeches were made by Hon. T. M. Patterson, Hon. Caldwell Yeaman and Hon. Hugh Butler.

The campaign has been a quiet one, on account of it being an off year and there being no state officers to elect except a chief justice of the supreme court.

The Australian ballot system will be put into effect for the first time in Colorado, and will probably be the means of somewhat reducing the republican majority.

The result will probably be the election of a mixed ticket, although the republican managers claim their ticket will be elected by from 3,000 to 5,000 majority.

THE NEW YORK VOTE.

It Will Be Very Large—Cleveland and Flower Cheered at the Polls.

New York, Nov. 3.—The weather is perfect, and everybody is out for a big vote, the workers of the various organizations being extremely active.

Voting is being done more rapidly than last year, as the new ballot law is better understood. Ex-President Cleveland and Candidate Roswell P. Flower voted in their respective districts early, and were cheered as they walked up to the polls.

Fifty persons were arrested for attempted illegal voting, and taken before United States Commissioner Davenport.

Alphonse E. Smith, chairman of the board of republican inspectors in the Seventh district of the Eighteenth assembly district was arrested for intoxication, and having no bondsman was locked up.

The report that the republican inspectors had been ousted in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth polling precincts of the Twenty-second assembly district proves to have been erroneous. The trouble at the Seventeenth originated in the attempt by Officer Carroll to arrest a man for alleged illegal voting.

A fight was precipitated in front of the polling place, and the crowd surged over to the corner of Baxter and the Bowery, where the police stopped the fight. No violence was committed on the inspectors.

At the Eighteenth precinct out of 326 registered votes 260 had voted by 12:30 o'clock.

CONGRESSMEN.

Six New Members to be Voted for at the Polls To-day.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Six congressmen will be chosen in the elections to-day. Three of the former incumbents were republicans and three were democrats. Four of the six vacancies are in the state of New York. In the second New York district, David A. Boody, democrat, resigned to accept a nomination for mayor of Brooklyn. The candidates for his seat are ex-Mayor Alfred C. Chapin, democrat, and Henry Bristow, republican.

In the tenth New York, vacated by the death of Gen. Spinola, democrat; the candidates are W. Bourk Corcoran, democrat; James Townsend, republican, and John Hauser, social labor.

In the twelfth New York, resigned by Mr. Flower, democrat, who wished to stand for governor; the candidates are Wm. McMichael, republican; Jos. J. Little, democrat; John J. Flick, social labor, and David De Venney, county democrat.

In the twenty-second New York, L. W. Russell, republican resigned to accept a judicial appointment. The candidates are Gen. N. M. Curtis, of St. Lawrence county, republican, and Wilber F. Porter, of Jefferson county, democrat.

ELECTION BULLETINS.

They Tell of the Weather and of a Very Heavy Vote Being Polled.

Boston, Nov. 3.—Voting is progressing quietly and in a more satisfactory manner than last year owing to greater familiarity with the Australian system. Up to 10 o'clock there had been only about twenty cases reported as to ignorance as to how to mark ballots.

Washington, Nov. 3.—The weather today is cloudy and cold.

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 3.—The polls were opened at 6 o'clock and by 7 a large proportion of the entire vote was polled. The vote is expected to exceed that of last year by 600, the gain probably being about equally divided. The weather is perfect.

Boston, Nov. 3.—In all parts of the commonwealth the weather is clear and cold, and everything points to a heavy vote in the Massachusetts state election to-day.

New York, Nov. 3.—The day is clear and cool with bright sunshine. Reports from throughout the state show clear weather in most places with prospects of a large vote.

Cortland, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The weather is clear and chilly. The indications are that a large republican vote will be cast.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 3.—A big vote is being polled. Many of the mines in Lackawanna county have suspended work for the day.

T. V. Powderly is making a personal fight for a constitutional convention.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 3.—There is a large vote being cast in this part of the state but the result is still unforseen. Gov. Pattison is confident of democratic success, believing that the vote in the agricultural districts will largely favor that party.

Kingston, N. Y., Nov. 3.—A large vote is being polled. Flower seems to run ahead of his ticket.

THE PLUCKY GOVERNOR

Still Maintains He Will Have a Majority

Of Fifteen Thousand Outside of Hamilton County—A Bet of $10,000 Placed on the Butler County Mascot.

Cincinnati, Nov. 3.—A special to the Post from Hamilton, O. says: "Gov. Campbell was here to-day and said that he would go to the Hamilton county line with 15,000 votes to back him."

This morning a personal friend of his in New York telegraphed to the governor from the Hoffman house, saying he was going to place a bet of $10,000 on his election, and asked the governor if he should place the bet.

Gov. Campbell answered to place the wager by all means, as he had the best of reasons to believe that he would be elected. The vote in Hamilton to-day was very heavy.

FIXING UP A DEFENSE.

The Administration to Square Patrick Egan.

The News from Chili Bothers Harrison.

The Secretary of Navy Enjoined His Officers with Strict Neutrality, but It Remains to be Seen Whether They Followed Orders.

Washington, Nov. 3.—The following are the instructions issued by the secretary of the navy to the United States squadron on the coast of Chili at the beginning of the Chilian disturbance. Secretary Tracy says:

"These instructions have been vigorously adhered to throughout. In no single instance have they been departed from. They prove conclusively that the charges of partiality made by the English newspapers are untruths, and that they have been invented in order to prejudice the Chilians against the United States for commercial purposes."

"Navy Department,
"Washington, March 26, 1891.

"Sir—When the United States flagship San Francisco is ready for sea you will proceed with her to the waters of Chili, South America, relieve Rear Admiral W. P. McCann, take command of that part of the Pacific station and protect American interests.

"The duty thus imposed upon you calls for the exercise of great discretion. Owing to the stoppage of communication, the department is without authentic details in reference to the condition of affairs in Chili, and you will therefore be compelled to rely chiefly upon your own judgment in the execution of its orders, in view of the facts as you shall ascertain them. The Chilian minister at Washington has sent the following communication to the department of state:

"I regret to inform you of a revolt of a division of the navy of the republic of Chili in the port of Valparaiso on the 7th of this month.

"My government has declared the revolted squadron outlawed, and instructs me to inform you that it is not answerable for the acts of the rebels in regard to foreigners or citizens."

On the 4th of March the department sent to Rear Admiral McCann by telegraph the following instructions:

"Insurgent vessels, although outlawed by Chilian government, are not pirates, unless committing acts of piracy. Observe strict neutrality. Take no part in troubles further than to protect American interests. Take whatever measures are necessary to prevent injury by insurgent vessels to lives or property of American citizens, including American telegraph cables. Endeavor to delay bombardment by insurgents until American citizens and property are removed, using force if necessary, only as a last resort, and when serious injury is threatened. American vessels seized by insurgents without satisfactory compensation, are liable to be recovered forcibly, but you should investigate the matter fully before taking extreme measures, and use every precaution to avoid such measures, if possible.

"As a further and more explicit guide to your action you are directed:

"1. To abstain from any proceedings which shall be in the nature of assistance to either party in the present disturbance, or from which sympathy with either party could be inferred.

"2. In reference to the ships which have been declared outlawed by the Chilian government, if such ships attempt to commit injuries or depredations upon the persons or property of Americans, you are authorized and directed to interfere to whatever extent it may be deemed necessary to prevent such acts; but you are not to interfere except for the protection of the lives or property of American citizens.

"3. Vessels or other property belonging to our citizens which may have been seized by the insurgents upon the high seas, and for which no just settlement or compensation has been made, are liable to forcible recovery; but the acts should be ascertained before proceeding to extreme measures, and all efforts made to avoid such measures.

"4. Should the bombardment of any place by which the lives or property of Americans may be endangered be attempted or threatened by such ships, you will, if your force is sufficient for the purpose, require them to refrain from bombarding the place until sufficient time has been allowed for placing American life and property in safety. You will enforce this demand if it is refused, and if it is granted proceed to give effect to the measures necessary for the security of such life and property.

"5. In reference to the granting of asylum your ships will not of course be made a refuge for criminals. In the case of persons other than criminals they will afford shelter whenever it may be needed, to Americans first of all and to others, including political refugees, as far as the claims of humanity may require and the services upon which you are engaged will permit.

"The obligation to receive political refugees and to afford them an asylum is in general one of pure humanity. It should not be continued beyond the urgent necessities of the situation, and should in no case become the means whereby the plans of contending factions or their leaders are facilitated. You are not to invite or encourage such refugees to come on board your ship, but should they apply to you your action will be governed by considerations of humanity and the exigencies of the service upon which you are engaged. When, however, a political refugee has embarked, in the territory of a third party, on board an American ship as a passenger for the purpose of innocent transport and it appears upon the entry of such ship, into the territorial waters that his life is in danger, it is your duty to extend him an offer of asylum.

"Referring to paragraph 18, page 137, of the navy regulations of 1876, which are as follows: 'If any vessel of war or a privateer shall be taken acting as a vessel of war or a privateer without having proper commission so to act, officers and crew shall be considered as pirates and treated accordingly.'

"You are informed that this paragraph does not refer to vessels acting in the interest of insurgents and directing their hostilities solely against the state whose authority they have disputed. It is only when such vessels commit piratical acts that they are to be treated as pirates, and unless their acts are of such a character or are directed against the persons or property of Americans you are not authorized to interfere with them.

"7. In all cases where it becomes necessary to take forcible measures, force will only be used as a last resort, and then only to the extent which is necessary to effect the object in view. The U. S. S. Baltimore, now enroute to the Pacific, is assigned to duty on the station under your command. Very respectfully,

"B. F. TRACY, Secretary of War.

"Rear Admiral George S. Brown, U. S. N.
"U. S. Flagship San Francisco,
"Navy Yard, Mare Island, Cal.

Proclamation of neutrality issued by Admiral McCann:

"General order No. 3.

"Flagship South Atlantic and South Pacific Stations, Talcahuano, Chili, February 22, 1891.

"The commander-in-chief cautions and enjoins the officers and enlisted men of the U. S. naval force on the west coast of South America to abstain from discussing or criticizing the present unfortunate state of affairs in Chili, and in no way express any sentiments or opinions either favorable or unfavorable to either side. While it becomes our duty to maintain the strictest neutrality in all our relations, it is also to our interests and to the credit of the service and our government to refrain from any expressions that can possibly be construed as offense by either party.

"Officers and enlisted men are therefore ordered to be most guarded and careful in their conversations in relation to the disturbed condition of affairs in this country, with any persons outside the U. S. naval service.

(Signed) "W. P. McCANN,
"Rear Admiral U. S. Navy."

THE MAYBRICK CASE.

Is a Person Sent to Prison for Life Legally Dead.

London, Nov. 3.—The executors of the will of Mr. Maybrick for causing whose death his widow, Mrs. Florence E. Maybrick, an American woman, is now undergoing life imprisonment, have appealed against the decision of court declaring void an insurance policy for $10,000 made out in favor of Mrs. Maybrick, on the ground that the death of the testator was the result of poison administered by his wife and heir.

Sir Charles Russell, Q. C., on behalf of the plaintiffs, contended that Mrs. Maybrick was legally dead. If the decision of the court below was sustained Maybrick's creditors and children must suffer.

A TIMBER RESERVE.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Senator Dubois, of Idaho, and a number of prominent citizens have petitioned the president to set apart a tract of land adjoining the Yellowstone National park as a permanent timber reserve. The land embraces 750,000 acres and includes Lake Henry. Commissioner of the general land office has placed the matter in the hands of a special agent with instructions to examine and report as to the advisability of extending the reservation north into Montana.

TRADE WITH PERU.

Washington, Nov. 3.—The government of Peru has informed the treasury department that Peru does not exact an export duty on sugar grown in that country. The government of Argentine does not allow an export duty but gives a guarantee of 5 per cent. on capital engaged in sugar production, and exacts a duty on imported sugars of 9 cents per kilo refined, and 7 cents per kilo on all other sugars.

PLENTY OF TALK

By the Board of Aldermen Last Evening.

The Trees Saved on Oliver Street—The Jury Ordinance Lost—Railway War.

All members of the board of aldermen were present at the meeting last evening. Matters moved along smoothly until the very last of the schedule when an hour was spent in windy talking, most of the time off the point at issue. These discussions were caused by the Oliver street sidewalk, the street railway fight and the jury ordinance.

The only new business introduced on first call was a resolution to abate the asessment for a sidewalk in front of lot 512 Yondota, on Fifth street, East Toledo. The lot is owned by H. P. Platt and has already been over-assessed. The resolution was referred to the sidewalk committee.

Ordinances were passed to improve Fifteenth street from Washington to the T., St. L. & K. C. railway; to improve the alley between Erie and Ontario street from Monroe street to Washington; to improve Oakland avenue.

Resolutions from the committee were adopted to improve Brigham street; Doyle street; Cleveland street; the alley between Cherry and Orange street, from Ontario street to Dove Lane; granting permission to the property owners to pave Fifteenth street and directing the street commissioner to grade the sidewalk bed in front of lot 599, Port Lawrence.

The resolution confirming the contract for changing the grade of Union street from Woodruff avenue to John street was laid over, as the money has not yet been paid in.

A communication read from A. K. Dotages for the loss of water power in the ages for the loss of water power n the canal. The matter was referred to the judiciary committee.

At his own request Simon Kohn was released from the bond of John Parker, justice of the peace.

Mr. Graham presented a resolution which was adopted extending the time for completing the Thirteenth street paving to November 15.

All business from the board of councilmen was adopted without comment until the resolution was reached directing the city engineer to locate the sidewalk on Oliver street. The original legislation placed the walks in the middle of the sidewalk bed and thus necessitated cutting down about 50 trees. The resolution before the board changed this so as to save the trees.

There has been a lively fight along that street and in the council over this matter, and both sides had a big lobby of property owners on hand last evening. Mr. Whitaker, speaking for one side, asked the board to adopt the resolution before them and thus save the trees.

Dr. Reed, for the other side, called up his lobby and placed them on exhibition and then made an argument against the resolution and in favor of the plans as originally adopted. He wanted the sidewalk in the center of the street and claimed that the trees now on the street were of all sizes and it would be better to have new trees of a uniform size set out.

Engineer Wickenden, when appealed to, stated that it was merely a matter of taste and should be settled by the property owners.

Mr. Hartford moved to refer the resolution back to the committee, but Dr. Reed objected strongly to this and asked the council to decide one way or the other.

At this Mr. Hartford withdrew his motion, and the roll call was started.

When it came Mr. Potter's turn to vote he stated that he thought the matter should go back to the committee to let the property owners have a chance to settle their dispute. At his request the board consented to postpone the finish of the roll call until later in the evening.

During the next half hour, while the board proceeded with its work, Dr. Reed and Mr. Whitaker had a conference, and the former made some propositions, but no agreement was reached. When the matter was taken up again there was no change in the situation, and the board adopted the resolution to save the trees.

The amendment to the street railway ordinance, which repeals the section prohibiting more than one set of trolley wires on a street, and thus allows the Consolidated to put up wires, came up for a third reading.

Mr. Potter, speaking for the street railway conference committee, stated that Mr. David Robison had some propositions to submit, and asked that he be heard.

Mr. Robison's propositions were in substance as follows: First, If the Consolidated will join with the Robisons in maintaining their two lines as a double track on Washington and Cherry streets, he will furnish them power over his wires on Adams street, Summit street, Monroe street, Perry street bridge and Broadway at 4 cents per car mile.

Or second, If the Consolidated refuse to maintain a double track on Cherry and Washington streets, he will furnish them power over the other streets named at 5 cents per car mile.

Mr. Robison then explained why he considered this price fair for the power used on the principal streets of the city where occurs the most strain.

Mr. Everett did not think that Mr. Robison's propositions had any bearing on the question before them, and made a statement of the circuit court decisions on the question, and reviewed the situation from a legal point of view. He considered that the ordinance allowing only one set of wires in the street tended to create a monopoly for the company owning those wires, and for this reason the ordinance should be changed.

Mr. Potter, Mr. Robison, Mr. Macomber and Mr. Everett then entered into a legal discussion over this decision, and all held somewhat different opinions as to the meaning of the same. No action was taken on the proposition of Mr. Robison, and when the vote was called the amendment was passed by a vote of 5 to 4.

The new jury ordinance then came up, but after a brief discussion was voted down.

THE MAVERICK BANK.

President Potter Makes a Statement.

He Tells Why the Great Institution Failed.

"Nervy" Evans' Death Was Not so Much the Cause as It Was the Talk on the Street About the Bank's Condition.

Boston, Nov. 3.—President Potter has made a statement of his relations with Mr. Evans. He says: "A week or more before Mr. Evans' death he owed the Maverick National bank a large sum of money. Changes in the market made it necessary, in the interest of the institution, of which I was president, that at least a portion of his liability should be taken up.

"He agreed to pay a certain sum of money the next day, but he failed to keep his promise. However, he came into my office and I turned to him and said without any heat or passion: 'Nervy, this won't do. I am personally disappointed. I believed you would keep your promise.' I turned away from him then and left the office.

"I am told that he took my rebuke, if rebuke it was, very much to heart.

"The loss of the Maverick bank on account of its dealings with Mr. Evans would be about $200,000 if the collateral could be judiciously disposed of. That loss had been figured out and charged off before the crisis of last week arose.

"The bank's dealings with Mr. Evans can in no sense be considered the direct cause of the suspension. The real causes of the failure are somewhat complicated.

"The first tangible thing was the refusal by President Wilmot R. Evans, of the Winthrop National bank, to accept one of our certified checks. Let me say that I do not blame Mr. Evans in the slightest degree. It is the natural result no doubt, of talking over with other members of the family the circumstances of his brother's death.

"Other bank presidents disapproved what he had done. Colonel Newman, president of the Commonwealth National bank told him as others had done, that he was not justified. As a matter of fact, Mr. Evans afterward apologized. Newman told him he considered it his duty as a member of the clearing house committee to bring the matter to the attention of his associates. Mr. Evans had no desire that the matter should take such a pass. It was too late, however, to remedy the mistake. The members of the committee asked me for the privilege of getting into the bank to examine our loans. I said 'No, gentlemen. That would be an outrage. I know just what that means.'

"The members of the clearing house committee, I am told, appealed to the comptroller of the currency for information and finally they were allowed to examine the condition of the bank. The way in which they did it is highly significant. Let me explain how they made an appraisal. In the first place they charged off as entirely worthless every item which in their opinion was in any way doubtful.

"Of course there was a great deal of paper and other securities of whose value the committee were ignorant. Having thus reached the net value of our assets, in their estimation, they proceeded to argue that in all bank liquidations there was an average shrinkage of twenty per cent. Of course after such a process the figures show apparently a large deficit. Let me say that if I were allowed to wind up the affairs of the bank no depositor and no stockholder would lose one dollar. All the facts about the banks condition and its management will officially be made in the course of time."

FOUND A MODEST MAN.

Admiral Jorge Montt a Presidential Quantity.

He Tells His People that He Is a Sailor and Not a Politician—The Egan Dislike.

New York, Oct. 3.—The Herald's Valparaiso dispatches confirm the news that Admiral Jorge Montt is the choice of all parties for president of the republic.

Montt is somewhat backward in accepting the honor and modestly declares that he is a sailor and not a politician.

It is, nevertheless, the general opinion that he will accede to the demand that he accept the presidency. His acceptance would unite all the political parties.

The papers here are blaming Minister Egan for fomenting the trouble between Chili and the United States.

A report reached Valparaiso yesterday from Santiago to the effect that Minister of Foreign Affairs Matta has sent a dispatch to Minister Egan relative to the Baltimore affair. It is said to be couched in a conciliatory tone and to evince in every way a desire to see that justice is done as soon as the inquiry is completed.

MCCORMACK'S CASE.

London, Nov. 3.—John McCormack, late assistant treasurer of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company of New York, arrested in Edinburgh on a charge of forgery and brought to this city where he was committed to Holloway jail to await the arrival of extradition papers, has been further remanded pending the arrival here from New York of Officer Reilly, whom the detective, Froest, stated was now crossing the Atlantic on the steamer Majestic.

TO LOOK INTO THE MAVERICK.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Comptroller Lacey has designated August Lynch, a national bank inspector connected with the office of the comptroller of the currency, to visit Boston and assist the district examiner now in charge of the Maverick National bank.

DEAD BODIES UPTURNED.

Natural Gas Explosion in a Cemetery.

A Ghastly Scene Reported From Coraopolis, Pa.—Bones of the Departed Disturbed.

Wheeling, Pa., Nov. 3.—News has reached here from Caraopolis, Pa., between here and Pittsburg, of a strange and terrible affair which occurred at that place yesterday.

The Allegheny Cemetery company started to bore a gas well on its property at Coraopolis, when a terrific explosion occurred, causing a great upheaval of the earth in the vicinity.

Hundreds of dead bodies in the cemetery were hurled from their resting place, and many costly monuments were shattered.

BOGUS BONDS IN THE MARKET.

St. Louis, Oct. 3.—Judge Thayer handed down an important decision yesterday in the case of the Farmers' Loan and Trust company of New York v. the Forest Park and Central Railroad company and the St. Louis, Colorado & Kansas City railroad, in which he declared an issue of $700,000 worth of bonds, $200,000 worth of which were held by the plaintiff, to be void.

QUAY SUES KERR.

He Wants a Hundred Thousand Dollars.

Philadelphia, Nov. 3.—Senator Quay has brought suit against Chairman James Kerr of the democratic state committee for libel.

A deputy sheriff attempted to serve a warrant on Chairman Kerr, but he had gone to his home in Clearfield to vote.

There are no signs now that a criminal prosecution will be brought against Mr. Kerr, as it is understood that Senator Quay has decided to confine his pursuit of the democratic chairman to a civil action, and will place the damages at $100,000.

INQUIRY POSTPONED.

London, Nov. 3.—The naval court of inquiry, which is to investigate the circumstances attending the recent sinking of two fishing smacks off Plymouth breakwater by balls from the iron gunboat Sabrina which was engaged in gun practice, has been adjourned until Saturday next. The postponement was suggested by the counsel for the injured fishermen and was promptly and willingly agreed to by the government.

A DARK SECRET

Presents the Acme of Realism on the Stage.

Shenandoah at the Wheeler Opera House Friday and Saturday—Robert Downing Next Week.

A Dark Secret, is the original tank drama, and was the first to introduce a river of real water on the stage, thus adding more to the realistic effects of the play and making a most pleasing departure from the dusty canvas waves and paper boats that formerly composed acquatic scenes in the theater.

This play made a hit from the start, and since that time the "tank" has been introduced in numerous dramas, but none have eclipsed the original, and A Dark Secret has held its place in the front of realistic melodramas. This splendid piece opened a week's engagement at the People's theater last evening and was greeted with a crowded house. A big hit was scored, and the engagement is an assured success.

Manager Brady has arranged to have the full election returns read from the stage this evening so that the patrons of the theater can also see how the battle of the ballots is going.

Aside from its wonderful realistic effects A Dark Secret has a good plot and other merits of a strong play, and, better than all, it is produced by an exceptionally large company of splendid actors.

Joseph Mason as Jonas Norton, the old hyprocrite, Hudson Liston as Stephen, his cockney son, carry their parts in fine form, and the latter shows much talent in the peculiar character of a comedian, who is also a villian. E. B. Tilton as Martin Brooke and Belle Stoddard as May Joyce won much applause as the wronged girl and her hero lover.

Geogre H. Hosmer, champion oarsman of New England, proved himself a good actor as well as a champion athlete. The Herbert Brothers gave a splendid exhibition of tumbling and other acrobatic feats, and the dancing of Miss Edith Fassett Tilton won for her many friends. The singing of the Dark Secret quartette was also of a high order and the whole cast was very strong.

The scenic effects, all of which are carried by the company, were very fine, and as the great interest centered in the river scene a description of this may be interesting. Fifteen hundred square feet of stage is flooded with water from three to four feet deep by means of an immense portable tank and during the scene at the Henley regatta the water is alive with boats, among which is a beautiful steam launch, a number of pleasure boats filled by gay merry-makers, and the two shells of the racing oarsmen. When the latter dashed across the stage at high speed, finishing the race for the diamond sculls, the excitement was intense and the audience fairly went wild.

In the fourth act the water is also used for a most realistic drowning scene when May Joyce is thrown into the river only to be saved, after sinking twice, by Martin Brooke, who makes a splendid long dive from a skiff. This act also called forth much enthsiastic applause.

Shenandoah.

The engagement of the original New York company in Bronson Howard's play of Shenandoah will begin at the Wheeler opera house Friday evening. If half of the words of praise that have been bestowed upon this piece are true, it is one of the great modern dramas of the time. The performances have created something of a sensation in other cities and the press has teemed with laudatory notices. It is Bronson Howard's best work, it is said, and that means that it is a sterling production. "Shenandoah" will be given at the Wheeler with every attention to detail, and the performances will be just as they were in New York. It will be repeated Saturday evening.

Robert Downing.

Robert Downing, the eminent young American tragedian, who now stands practically alone as an exponent of the character of the robust order on the stage of the present day, will be seen at Wheeler's opera house on next Monday evening, in his great impersonation of Marc Anthony, in Shakespeare's greatest of plays, Julius Caesar. Mr. Downing will be supported by a very strong company, led by that beautiful woman and accomplished actress, Eugenie Blair, and includes that well known actor Fred C. Mosley, who for so many seasons played the lead with the late lamented Lawrence Barrett. This grand play will be magnificently presented in the way of new and special scenery and the costuming will be most elaborate. With the fine cast it will receive at the hands of Mr. Downing and his talented company, a great performance may be looked for.

A Trip to Washington.

At the Central Congregational church next Friday evening a very interesting stereoptican lecture on the city of Washington will be given by Mr. H. P. R. Holt.

A LADY'S PERIL.

The Dangers to be Apprehended From Catarrh and Consumption at This Time of the Year.

When the tendency of the catarrhal progress is evidently to the chest and lungs, and the hacking cough, loss of flesh, pain in the chest, and failing strength give their unmistakable evidence of predisposition to consumption, the patient should spare no pains and lose no time in arresting what is practical and imminent danger. With the coming of winter, which, if the predictions of the weather prophets are true, will be an unusually severe one, the care of cases like these becomes of even more than usual importance.

Catarrh and Consumption

which go hand in hand, in this climate of ours, should be met at this season with the the most faithful, persistent and skillful care. Continued evidence of the result obtained by the skillful personal care and attention of Drs. Copeland and Buffett may be noticed in such cases as that given below by Miss S. Chattinger, who resides at 2521 Cherry street, and is employed at the Toledo Knitting Works on Superior street. Her experience given in her own words is as follows:

"Previous to a year ago last June I had very fair health, but at that time I began to fail and since then the miseries I have endured would baffle description."

Miss S. Chattinger, 2521 Cherry St.

"My trouble began with what I supposed was ague, the bones throughout my entire body ached, my flesh seemed tender and sore to the touch, I had a headache nearly every day, I was always dull and drowsy. Then, though it was in the summer time, I would catch cold very easy, my nose would clog up, scales would form on both sides, completely filling the nasal passages. My eyes became weak and watery. The secretions from the head would drop into the throat, irritating it so as to keep me constantly hawking and spitting to keep it clear. In about three months time this condition of affairs had reached the lungs and stomach. I began to have annoying pains through the chest and back, and most peculiar sensations about the heart. For three months I coughed so hard that my throat and stomach were kept continually sore by the strain. I had no appetite and was fast losing flesh and strength, when I was induced to consult Drs. Copeland and Buffett. You can say for me that I cannot too highly recommend these specialists. They had an intelligent understanding of my case from the very start, one by one the symptoms began leaving me until to-day I am a well woman."

This statement can easily be verified by seeing or writing Miss Chattinger at the above address.

Representative Man.

MR. C. E. McLEAN, 935 Indiana avenue, connected with Roth and Freedman's dyeing establishment says: "Drs. Copeland and Buffett worked wonders in my case. My catarrhal trouble has disappeared under their skillful treatment. I cannot recommend them too highly."

MR. N. R. DULL, 2215 Lorlie street, contracting carpenter, says: "I recommend Drs. Copeland and Buffett as physicians of marked ability. They relieved me of a catarrhal complaint of long standing."

MR. JOSEPH COOMBS, watchman at the "Blade" building, residing 388 Indiana avenue, says: "To the diligent, faithful, scientific and skillful treatment I received of Drs. Copeland and Buffett do I attribute the fact of my being restored to health."

MR. EUGENE McCARTHY, a member of the Toledo police force, residing at 316 Knower street says: "Drs. Copeland and Buffett cured me of an aggravating bay fever and I unhesitatingly recommend these physicians."

Treated by Mail.

The following testimonial furnishes a notable case of the results of Drs. Copeland and Buffett's system of treatment by mail:

Drs. Copeland and Buffett, respectfully.

"I hereby certify that I have used your catarrh remedies as directed, that you sent me by mail, and have received great benefit thereby. And I fully believe that a permanent cure will be obtained by continuing the use of your medicines a reasonable length of time, which I am very anxious to do." Yours truly,

Mrs. Minnie White,

HE WAS HORSEWHIPPED.

Timothy Healy Assaulted by Parnell's Nephew

For Remarks Made Against Mrs. O'Shea.

The Friends of Both Sides Take Up the Battle—Fears that Serious Trouble May Occur Before the Morrow.

Dublin, Nov. 3.—Timothy Healy, McCarthyite member of the house of commons for the northern division of the county of Longford, has been publicly horsewhipped in the streets of Dublin by Mr. McDermott, the nephew of the late Charles Stewart Parnell.

Such is the terse record of an interesting and not unexpected event which has just been placed upon the bulletin boards of the various newspapers of this city, every one of which is surrounded by demonstrative crowds of hot-blooded Irishmen.

The Parnellites in throngs which gaze upon the big black letters of the notice are jubilant and do not hesitate to taunt the McCarthyites who also crowd about the boards.

The consequence is that a number of fights have already occurred, while the temper of the partisans is such as to suggest the necessity for strong and vigilant police patrols.

It has been in the air that Mr. Healy would by some one and somehow, be called to a prompt reckoning for the exceedingly vigorous speech delivered by him at Longford on Sunday last. Ordinarily, Mr. Healy is a remarkably forcible orator, but on the occasion in question he excelled himself, having gone so far as to refer to Mrs. Parnell as "an English prostitute."

The particulars of the assault are as follows: Mr. McDermott, who is a solicitor, this morning espied Timothy Healy, dressed in his barristers' wig and gown, walking through the Four Courts.

Without a moment's delay Mr. McDermott drew a horsewhip from under his coat and, rushing upon the astounded commoner, vigorously belabored him with repeated and vigorously delivered blows.

Mr. Healy was taken completely by surprise, and stumbling, fell flat upon his back, his wig falling from his head at the same time.

While Mr. Healy was prostrate his enemy continued to remorselessly and unsparingly slash whatever part of his body presented itself.

This, however, did not last long, for Mr. Healy, springing to his feet, the two men clinched. There was a rapid delivery of fist blows by Mr. McDermott and then the fight was concluded in McDermott's favor.

The men were finally separated. McDermott explained to the crowd that the thrashing was on account of Healy assailing Parnell's female relatives.

LIFE IN WICKED PARIS.

A Suicide and Murder at a Hotel.

A Discarded Woman Kills Herself After Having Administered a Fatal Dose to Her Betrayer.

Paris, Nov. 3.—Marie Leboeuf, a governess, has committed suicide in this city after having shot and fatally wounded her lover, a government official at Noment-Sur-Marne, named Valentine Beras.

Marie Leboeuf, it appears, became the mistress of Valentine Beras on the promise of the man that he would take her in marriage. Beras had, however, made similar promises to many other women and at last jilted Marie in favor of another.

The injured woman under the pretext of wishing a final interview with Beras before his marriage, persuaded her recreant lover to visit her here.

Valentine Beras and Marie Leboeuf spent last night together in a hotel of this city, and this morning Valentine was discovered in a dying condition by the side of the betrayed Marie's dead body.

TO ATTACK THE BALTIMORE

Startling Rumors Afloat in London.

The Tory Press Keeps Up Its Fire Which is Intended Solely for the Chilians to Read.

London, Nov. 3.—A private dispatch received from Valparaiso says that the American cruiser Baltimore, is in serious danger, and that there is reason to believe that the Chilians, believing war inevitable, will not allow the United States to select their own time to declare war but will suddenly give Egan his passports, and at once attack the Baltimore, so as to have the first blow at an advantage.

It is not believed among the foreign residents of Valparaiso that the other foreign men-of-war in Valparaiso harbor would permit a treacherous attack on Capt. Schley, but would demand that he be given fair notice to quit Valparaiso.

Capt. Schley, however, is keeping a vigilant outlook, and means to take no chance. Those who know him say he would not surrender under any circumstances.

The tory press continues to pour the vials of its wrath upon the United States in connection with Chili, the articles being apparently intended rather for consumption in Chili than England or America, and being well calculated to put that country with a great idea of Chili's capacity for defeating the Americans.

MET AN AWFUL DEATH.

Webster, Mass., Nov. 3.—Harry Jones, an unmarried operative in the West Dudley paper mill, met a horrible death there last Saturday. He went to the cellar to turn water into a water chest, and a large silver chain which he wore about his neck caught a nut on the shaft, which drew the unfortunate man to his death. When found he was on his knees, the shaft was stopped and he was black in the face.

MISTRUST THE "YANKEES."

How Italy Views the Chilian Trouble.

Italia Makes a Claim that the People of the United States Discriminate Unjustly.

London, Nov. 3.—The Italia, of Rome, to-day publishes an article in which it asserts that the "Yankees" have one diplomatic rule for Italy and another for Chili. The "Yankees," says Italia, have by the McKinley bill virtually closed the markets of their country to Italian wares and products, and now seek to exercise a paramount suzerainty over all America. All "Yankees," according to the paper, unscrupulously follow politics as a trade. They do so even when foreign affairs are not in question. Italia concludes its editorial utterances on the subject by saying that "the time may come when Europe, laying aside petty differences, will call the United States to more exact and precise notion of the law of nations."

REDMOND'S CAMPAIGN.

He Objects to Interference by the Priests.

If He is Defeated He will Contest on the Grounds of Priestly Interference.

Cork, Nov. 3.—Singular statements are alleged by the Parnellite leaders as to the intimidation of voters by the clergy.

It is said that anathema has been threatened against electors who should dare to vote the Parnell ticket; that men were told to drop the Parnellite cause under peril of being denied the rights of the church, and that women were appealed to by priests to influence their husbands against the Parnellite cause.

It is thought probable that, in the event of an anti-Parnellite victory on Friday, Mr. Redmond will contest the election on the alleged ground of priestly intimidation and dictation.

The Parnellites claim, that, but for the priests, they could carry the district with ease, but that the clergy spare no effort to prejudice the minds of the people against the cause represented by Mr. Redmond.

BUCHANAN WILL ACT.

The Convict Question Troubling Him Much.

He Has Exhausted the Resources at His Command with but Little Effect.

Chattanooga, Nov. 3.—Gov. Buchanan passed through the city yesterday en route from Nashville for Knoxville, whither he had gone to consult with Attorney General Pickle and where he issued his proclamation.

The governor had heard the news of the release of the 200 prisoners at Oliver Springs He said he had exhausted all the resources at his command and was determined to break up the lawlessness and bring the ringleaders to justice.

He has done all in his power by message and personal influence before the legislature to secure relief for the miners, but while he sympathized with them he could not uphold lawlessness. He will issue an additional proclamation, offering a reward for the capture of the leaders of the new mob.

A Maine Bank Has to Close Its Doors.

Its Connection with the Boston Concern Caused a Run It Could Not Hold Up Under.

Damariscotta, Me., Nov. 3.—The Maverick National bank, of Boston, held $40,000 of the funds of the First National bank of this city.

The news of the failure reached here yesterday and a run was at once started on the First National bank. It soon suspended payment and closed its doors.

THE LOCAL ELECTION.

An Immense Vote Being Polled—Everything Quiet and Orderly.

Indications are that a larger vote will be polled in Toledo to-day than ever before in the history of the city. The injunctions to vote early has had its effect, and in many precincts as early as 8 o'clock this morning one-third and in some instances fully one-half the vote was cast.

There has been no election in years in which such interest has been taken locally. A remarkable feature of it is the number of volunteer workers on both sides. It is morally impossible to give even a guess at the probable result. It is the opinion of judges and clerks that the straight ticket is being voted as a rule.

The Australian system is working to a charm. There has not been a hitch so far, although great care must be taken to get the workingmen out before 5 o'clock. There is no chance for a crush at any precinct unless a deliberate attempt is made to create one.

Between 11 o'clock and noon the following vote had been cast in the precincts visited by Bee reporters:

Precinct A, Ward 3—124 out of a total of 236.
C of the Third—149 out of 251.
F of the Third—228 out of 386.
A of the Fourth—178 out of 347.
B of the Fourth—79 out of 177.
C of the Fourth—189 out of 420.

MONTT FOR PRESIDENT.

London, Nov. 3.—A dispatch from Santiago de Chili announces the opening of the Chilian congress. The conservative party immediately placed Admiral Jorge Montt in nomination for the presidency, a selection which the liberals are expected to indorse. The same dispatch says that the junta has already released the majority of the political prisoners.

KERR READY FOR BATTLE.

Clearfield, Pa., Nov. 3.—Chairman Kerr, of the state democratic committee, has sent the following message to Rufus E. Shapley, Senator Quay's counsel in Philadelphia:

"Clearfield, Pa., Nov. 3.—Will leave for Philadelphia this morning to meet any action you may see fit to bring for Mr. Quay. Papers can be served on me at 1416 South Penn square this evening. I am ready.

JAMES KERR."

EITHER WILL DO.

By this time it is settled that Campbell or McKinley will be the next governor of Ohio, and with the great mass of the people either will do, and so it is with the purchaser of a Stultz & Bauer or a Vose & Sons piano. Either instrument is first-class in every particular, and both will give entire satisfaction to purchasers. See them now at J. W. Greene & Co.'s, Pythian Castle.

POLK BADGET.

Cincinnati, Nov. 3.—Judge Barr, in the United States court at Covington, decided that John Brannain, part owner of the race horse Polk Badget, must be restored to all the rights and privileges of Latonia and other race courses, claiming that the circumstances did not warrant the Latonia officials in taking their recent action.

SHOULD BUTTON UP HIS MOUTH.

Vienna, Nov. 3.—Capt. Uzelac, who commanded a Croatian regiment in the Austrian service, has been severely reprimanded for using language calculated to provoke the Hungarians, when laying a wreath at the foot of the statue of Gen. Jellalich.

THE NEW PIPE LINE.

Manager Tonkin of the Northwestern Gas company informed a Bee this morning that the Sandusky county pipe was completed to the insane asylum and would be constructed to South street within a day or two.

Paris, Nov. 3.—The French government will confer decorations upon the officers of the Russian warships Dimitri Donskoi and Minin Zaliaka, now at Brest.

THE ONLY RELIABLE.

The Parisian Dye House, 607 Adams street, will call for your lace curtains and draperies, clean them, make them look like new, and deliver them to you. Phone 178.

ARGENTINA'S GROWTH.

The growth of the Argentine Republic in the past 30 years has been remarkable. According to recent statistics the population of the Republic is now 4,000,000, as against 1,350,000 in 1861. There are 7,000,000 acres under cultivation, where in 1861 there were but 400,000, and while in that year there were but 18 miles of railroad in the country, there are now over 5,000 miles in operation and 6,000 more, including the great transcontinental route, in course of construction. The public debt has grown pretty vigorously, too, however. It has increased from $17,000,000 to $613,000,000.

THE RAILROADS.

Frank Foster, an Old Well-Known Toledoan,

Talks on the Lumber Interests—Hocking Valley Equipment—Cinders Here and There.

F. E. Foster, a prominent railroad man, formerly of Toledo, but now with the Wisconsin Central at Ashland, Wisconsin, is in the city to-day.

In speaking of the lumber resources of the Badger state, Mr. Foster said:

"Lumber men have been sawing away in these almost boundless forests for years, and there seems to be as much timber in Wisconsin as ever. Lumbering has been about the only resource of the state, but there is no doubt but what the territory is rich in mineral products. It is only a question of a short time now when this entombed wealth will be developed, and it will mark a new and progressive era for the state.

"The town of Ashland is a small place, but most beautifully located. It is right in the heart of the lumber region, and its existence is due to the lumber trade and the great woods which surround it. There is nothing raised by tillage in that country whatever. All the necessities of life are shipped from Illinois and Iowa. There isn't much cleared ground, and that which has been cleared is not productive of anything more than rock. They plant maple trees some places, but I don't suppose they will grow enough to shade the nose of a baby generations to come."

Keep Sober, Boys.

In an address to a meeting of locomotive firemen at Albany, N. Y., the other day, Grand Master F. P. Sargent gave the boys some wholesome advice, as follows: "No one is taken into the firemen's organization but men who have had nine months' actual experience on a locomotive. Another qualification for membership is sobriety. No other man has any right on an engine in the capacity of fireman. When intelligent and conservative leadership is maintained there is never need for worry as to the results of organized labor."

Denies the Allegation.

A recent number of the Station Agent contained a story of the discharge of Lake Shore agents for receiving commissions and accused the Burlington road of furnishing information which led to the wholesale beheading.

A. C. Dawes, general passenger agent of the Missouri lines, was seen in the matter. He was not included in the charges, therefore made no statement, but telegraphed to P. S. Eustis, general passenger and ticket agent of the C., B. and Q. system, and received the following in reply:

Chicago, Oct. 31.—A. C. Dawes, St. Louis: Telegram received about article in yesterday morning's papers saying that it was in consequence of information given by us that Lake Shore ticket agents were removed. You may deny the charge in terms as broad and pointed as words will frame, as we have absolutely no connection whatever with the matter, and the charge, in whatever way made, should be ridiculous to people who know the character of the C., B. and Q. railroad and its officers. Any report that we should desire the discharge of Lake Shore agents is peculiarly absurd, because our business has been so satisfactory from that line for several years past. We have paid no commissions whatever to Lake Shore agents since the agreement was made with the board of rulings. M. G. Carroll, of union depot, Cleveland, did ask us for the return of any vouchers we had, and we replied that we did not know that any had been received from him, but if they had, they had been destroyed as fast as received. I did not understand at the time that he referred to vouchers prior to last March, and if we ever paid him any such vouchers they are on file in our office here and can be got at in 10 minutes. Have examined the records since Lake Shore agents were prohibited from receiving commissions and find that we have never paid a dollar to the agent at Hanover, Mr. Segner.

P. S. EUSTIS.
General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad.

The yard is being remodeled to give more track room and better opportunities for handling the constantly increasing business with more convenience and dispatch. The Michigan Central is also making improvements in the same particular. The Clover Leaf is building numerous station buildings along the line and otherwise improving.

Clarence Brown, general counsel of the Clover Leaf, went to New York city today on business.

A. L. Mills, chief engineer of the Clover Leaf, will leave this evening to complete his annual inspection of the road.

O. W. Bell, master transportation of the L. E. and W., has been appointed division superintendent of that line.

Fred DeGrief, of the C., H. and D. freight office at Lima, has been appointed agent of that road at Wapakoneta.

New members are entering the Pennsylvania lines' relief department at the rate of 150 a month. Thirty have joined in the past month on the Indianapolis division.

The Clover Leaf has placed an order with the St. Charles Car company of St. Louis for four elegant chair cars. These chair cars are to be finished in mahogany and to have all the latest improvements. Two of them will be fitted with buffets, so that meals may be served on them during the run between St. Louis and Toledo.

TOLEDO, OHIO, NOVEMBER 3, 1891.

To-morrow we will rejoice, or—

The individual is truly the sovereign to-day and proud he is of his power.

There is a large vote all over the Ohio to-day. We hope it is indicative of democratic strength.

"Silently as the snowflakes" the ballots fall into the box, but a shortage of them will fall like lead on some men's souls, and pocket-books.

This is the first day in Ohio's history when the voters are absolutely equal in their individual rights. The Australian ballot has made men equal. The ballot is secret and free to-day.

Chauncey Depew said that "the world's fair assassins would be buried beneath 100,000 majority."

This is the burial day and may every grain of sand in Mr. Depew's prophecy slide from the undertaker's shovel.

The dispatch writers in Chicago sent out information yesterday that Carter Harrison had purchased the Times of that city and would make it distinctively Harrisonian and cranky. The pencil shovers were too flippant. Mr. Harrison is brainy, broad-gauge and democratic. He will make the Times a reliable organ and progressive newspaper. Welcome "our Carter" to journalism.

Timothy Healy has been publicly horse-whipped in the streets Longford, and Timothy Healy has received what he richly deserved. It is bad enough to attack a living man with unfair weapons. It is ghoulish to continue the attack when the man is dead. But no word is strong enough to characterize the infamy of a man who, because of his hatred of a man dead and out of his reach, will attack and slander the bereaved women of that dead man's family.

In another column of this issue is an invitation to Toledo people to attend the annual reception and donation at the Old Ladies' home to-morrow. For the coming winter the board of managers must have more assistance than they have asked for or received for several years. When the purpose of the noble institution is considered, when it is remembered that the Home is for homeless and aged women, that it gives them not only shelter but the tender care which their helplessness and age requires, we feel sure our generous-hearted citizens need only to be reminded that more assistance is needed, and generous contributions will be forthcoming.

This is the all-glorious day for American freeman; the day when the divine right of citizenship is greater than the traditional divine right of kings. It is a fearful responsibility, and the man who would vote against his conscience for the sake of pelf, position or power; the man who doesn't go the polling place because it is too much trouble; the man who isn't "in politics" sufficiently deep to care how it goes only so his business isn't interfered with; the man who has no well-understood reason for the ballot he casts—these are unworthy citizens of a country that was made free at the cost of so much blood and treasure. However the battle of the ballots shall result, no issue is settled until it is settled as it should be, in the interest of the whole people. The fight is on until the right side wins. As an inspired poet has declared:

For freedom's battle once begun,
Bequeathed from bleeding sire to son
Tho' baffled oft is ever won.

If it be true that to levy tribute on the people for the benefit of classes of producers and denominate their wealth the prosperity of the country, is just and wise, then the election of McKinley will be well for Ohio and for the union. If equal opportunity for all, so far as legal enactments are concerned, and favor for none, if liberty and equality are the true watchwords; if the man who raises a bushel of corn has as much right to a government fee for his product as the man who boils down sap that runs from a tree nature has planted, and makes sugar from it—if this is, indeed, a land of equal rights, then the people may rejoice with reason and gratitude if Gov. Campbell, who represents these American principles and upholds these American precepts, shall be again declared governor of the great state of Ohio

Sometime early in the new year Secretary Rusk will put forth a bulletin showing the market price, that is, the price paid, the producer, of the pricipal farm products of fifty years back, from which interesting comparisons may be drawn. It is said the pamphlet is to be prepared, primarily, for the benefit of the senate committee, appointed to make tariff investigations. For such use its value will be small indeed, except with the tabulated figures there be record and accompanying narrative of the progress of inventions, the state and condition of crops for each year dependent upon the weather, and also the agricultural situation in the countries of the world to which Uncle Sam sends food according to their need. To present an array of figures alone, and when they foot up well say, "see what the tariff has done for the country," and if they fall short, cry, "nothing but the tariff saved the country from going to a deeper depth," is too puerile to catch any but the thoughtless mind or to pass for argument among thinking people. That men would have been plowing with cross sticks to-day and cutting their grain with a hand scythe but for the "protection" via taxation, is what no man would affirm in so many words. What has the tariff to do with the price of wheat to-day, when Europe has had the worst crop season of a decade and the United States the best?

Uncle Jerry's pamphlet will be of small use to the committee for whose benefit it is to be issued. The country might as well be saved the expense, now when the national treasury is so depleted that every little tells. Just why a "committee" at all was necessary, is a question. What with the volunteer testimony of individuals in all parts of the country and with the aid of Mr. Porter's census, sufficient data could have been collected. About as much need as for that "emigration committee," members of which need an interpreter to order a dinner from a bill of fare in Paris or Berlin.

But then, Uncle Jerry must do something to keep himself and his department from being forgotten, and the issuance of a pamphlet of statistics is eminently safe and respectable.

THE DEADLY WIRES.

A Boy and a Horse Injured by a Broken Trolley Wire.

A Robison street railway trolley wire on Ottawa street near the Perry street bridge broke yesterday afternoon, and in falling, one of the ends struck W. L. Connelly, a young man who was riding by on a bicycle, and knocked him senseless to the ground. It was found that the wire had struck him on the neck, which was slightly burned. He was taken home, where he recovered from the shock about two hours afterwards, and it was found that he was not seriously injured.

The same wire struck a horse across the back and was also thrown to the ground and disabled by the shock. The animal belonged to Mr. Frank Gifford, of the Paragon Oil Refinery.

IT IS MODIFIED.

The Injunction Relative to the Rolling Mill.

Text of the Affidavit, Motion and Entry in Court on the Subject—Not Much Hope for the Mill Receiving Gas.

The Maumee rolling mills will be deprived of the use of natural gas for fuel, for a short time at least.

It will be remembered that the management of the rolling mills filed an application in common pleas court and obtained a preliminary injunction restraining the gas trustees from shutting off the supply of natural gas. Late yesterday afternoon the gas trustees filed the following notice to modify the injunction:

Now come the defendants and move the court to modify the injunction herein granted so as to allow the city of Toledo, through its board of natural gas trustees, to regulate and control the supply of natural gas to the plaintiffs therein to such an extent that the said board will be able to properly supply the other consumers of natural gas from said pipe line; that in case of necessity, for the protection of domestic consumers receiving gas from said line, said board of natural gas trustees may temporarily stop the supply of natural gas to this plaintiff. W. H. A. READ, City Solicitor and Defendant's Attorney.

Accompanying this motion was the affidavit of President Parsons, of the gas trustees, setting forth various reasons why the injunction should be modified.

The affidavit stated that the city plant and pipes were so located as to make it impossible to connect with any other pipe line in the city. That a majority of the consumers are situated in such a manner that they can not obtain fuel from any other line, and that nine-tenths of the patrons are domestic consumers, who will suffer by the diminution in the pressure by reason of the enforcement of the injunction.

It further alleges that the Maumee Rolling Mills consumes largely, equal, if not in excess of the entire amount required to supply the domestic consumers; that until other wells can be connected, which will not be for ten days, the entire supply will be required for domestic consumers.

If the mills are allowed to receive full pressure the domestic consumers will suffer; that many complaints have already been made of the low pressure; that in a great many places, sickness prevails, and loss of life may result in depriving such consumer of a sufficient supply of fuel; that by terms of the contract the board reserved the right at any time that it was necessary by reason of an insufficient pressure to shut off the supply.

The motion was argued yesterday afternoon before Judge Harmon, at the conclusion of which the following journal entry was made:

This day came on for hearing the motion of the defendants to modify the preliminary restraining order heretofore granted, and the court being fully advised in the premises finds that said motion should be granted.

It is therefore ordered, adjudged and decreed that the injunction be and the same is hereby modified so as to restrain the defendants from discontinuing gas from the plaintiffs' mill as it has been heretofore used and engaged by it, and from the cancellation of the contract made between the plaintiff and defendant, and to enable the defendants to regulate the furnishing of gas as they have heretofore, but not so as to operate as a permanent discontinuance of the gas to plaintiff.

TO SUE GOVERNOR HILL.

Senator Vedder Will Go Into the Courts.

David B. Has Been Saying Things About a Chicago Land Deal that Bothers Him.

New York, Nov. 3.—A special from Buffalo to the World says: A dispatch from Salamanca states that Senator Vedder will sue Gov. Hill for slander, in connection with the latter's statement relative to Vedder and that Chicago land deal. Mr. Vedder's friends are authority for the statement that he intends to bring both civil and criminal actions. The matter will be pushed along as speedily as possible after election.

IN BAD SHAPE.

A man, crazy drunk and half naked, was picked up near Grasser & Brand's brewery at 10:30 last evening and sent to the central station. He gave his name as W. L. Newman and claims to be a physician from Detroit. He was locked up in the padded cell where to-day he is suffering from a severe attack of delirium tremens and is in a very bad condition. No trace of the man's clothes could be found and it is supposed that in his frenzy he tore them off somewhere else.

THE LAST SAD RITES.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Forbes occurred this morning at 10:30 o'clock from the residence, 137 Superior street. Rev. Chas. Scadding read the beautiful Episcopal service. Drs. W. W. Jones, J. W. Bond, C. A. Kirkley, D. P. Chamberlain, G. A. Cellan re, C. L. Van Pelt, J. T. Woods and H. M. Schmetzler acted as pall-bearers.

What If We Had No Surplus Crop?

New York has exported $75,513,351 in gold during the year, and imported $21,982,700. Of the imports $20,180,000 have been received since September 12, which conveys some idea of the demand for the surplus wheat crop of the United States. The year will close with the imports not many millions behind the exports.—Kansas City Star.

Our "Brilliant Foreign Policy."

It will be observed that under this administration, with its Mizners and Egans, we have lost the friendship of every country on the west coast from Central America to Cape Horn. That sort of thing may be "brilliant foreign policy," but our merchants find it anything but good for trade.—New York World.

The Thing to Do.

It is reported that Pat Egan has been taken aboard the Baltimore. The commander of that noble craft has it in his power to end the whole trouble with Chili by steaming away with the mischief-maker.—Chicago Times.

A National Calamity.

They have had a conflagration in the pension office at Washington, but it was subdued before Raum could be smoked out.—Boston Herald.

It Looks That Way.

Balmaceda is not so dead but that the Harrison administration is still backing his dictatorship.—St. Louis Republic.

HOW OHIO VOTED

Two Years Ago for Governor, as Shown Officially,

And the Vote by Districts and Counties Last Year—You May Take Your Choice for Guessing.

The following are the votes as cast for Governor Campbell and Governor Forker two years ago, as given by the secretary of state, and may be used for comparison this evening.

The vote by senatorial districts and counties, as cast last fall for secretary of state, is also given, which shows considerable change from that of the gubernatorial vote. The reader can thus notice which way the wind blows:

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES.

Meeting of the Christian Alliance—Old Ladies' Home—Cooking Class.

Great interest is manifested in the evening cooking class to be organized this evening in the Manual Training school building, third floor, entrance on Adams street. All interested are invited to be present.

There will be a meeting of the Christian Alliance at 411 South St. Clair street, Wednesday evening, Nov. 4, at 7:30 o'clock. All are invited.

The November meeting of the Woman's Suffrage association should be well attended. A great many subjects of interest come up besides the usual routine work and program. A report upon the police matron business will be a special feature of the meeting. To-morrow afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock, room 9, Fort Industry block. Every one invited.

The board of managers of the Old Ladies' home extend a cordial invitation to their friends and to the public generally to attend the reception held at the Home to-morrow, forenoon and afternoon. The annual donation will be received, and it is hoped it will be this year larger than ever before, because more is needed. All who can should visit the Home to-morrow, and those who cannot should send in liberal contributions.

Leavitt W. C. T. U. meets this evening in the Lagrange street Congregational church. Visitors interested in this work are cordially invited to attend the meeting.

AN OLD TOLEDO PAINTER.

J. J. Fritz Ingold and His Career.

He Has an Eventful Life—His Daughters Learn to Use the Brush—Fritz Still Takes a Hand.

Nestled in a cosy cottage in one of the pretty suburbs of this city, is a most happy and exceedingly interesting family, J. J. Fritz Ingold, and two daughters, Ida and Francisca, who possess rare artistic ability, which, had it been developed, renowned fame would have been the natural sequence.

Ingold lives at 385 Wabash street, with his youngest daughter, who has been married for several years. He was found by a Bee in his little shop, diligently at work on a landscape, and on first being importuned for a brief sketch of himself and children, was reluctant, but soon overcame this feeling and related his past history with great interest.

He was born in a small village near Berne, Switzerland, in 1829, where he learned his father's trade, that of a cabinet maker. At the age of 25 years, Fritz emigrated to America, casting his lot with many others of his fellow countrymen.

He made his way direct to Toledo, where he secured work as a carpenter. Being possessed of that inexplicable ability to do most anything, he always found employment. If carpenter work was scarce he turned his hand at house painting. It was while thus employed that he discovered that his talent in this line was worthy of a more classical application. One rainy day while loafing about the shop, he became interested in a sketch one of the men was filling out in oil.

Fritz at once became imbued with the idea that he could do a turn of that kind himself. He made an effort, and the result was highly satisfactory to Fritz, if to no one else, and the consequence was, the carpenter trade was abandoned and the more congenial employment adopted.

As the paintings failed to provide the necessities of life, the newly-elected artist found that either he or the art would have to go, unless something was done.

J. J. Fritz Ingold.

With his usual grim determination to win all or lose all, Fritz tried his hand at sign writing, and won. He soon learned that his ability was confined to portrait and landscape work. He then began to paint landscapes on wire screens, and he soon had more than he could do, decorating fancy screens for doors, saloons furnishing him the greatest amount of work. His talent in this line developed immensely and many of his life-like paintings decorate the principal streets to-day.

After a while the artist settled in a "shop" of his own and took unto himself a wife.

In 1859, Francisca, the eldest daughter, was born, and in 1861 Ida arrived to brighten the already happy home. At the ages of 10 and 12 the two children began to manifest an interest in their father's employment, spending hours with him before his easel.

At this age they were given regular instruction, and proved apt scholars. It was not long until they were able to reimburse their father amply for the care and diligence exerted in their training. After receiving lessons for a few weeks thy were both able to paint a sign that would compete very favorably with the work of older heads in the business.

The three worked together from this time on, until the girls grew to womanhood, when they were sought by worthy young men, married, ceased from labor, and are living in this city, happy and contented. The father and instructor resides with Ida.

Mr. Ingold served as a private during the late war, and in the service contracted rheumatism, which has crippled him to such an extent that he is unable to manipulate a brush with his old-time cunning.

When not engaged in sign writing he works at the easel, and some artistic pictures are the production of his brush. He loves to paint scenes of his fatherland, and some of them are true to life.

THE CONTRACT LET

For the Foundation of St. Patrick's New Church.

As advertised, sealed bids for the building of the foundation of St. Patrick's new church were received yesterday up to 6 o'clock. The bids were opened at 8 o'clock last night in the presence of Rev. E. Hannin, the four members of the church committee and the parties bidding for the work.

Messrs. Thomrts and Michael Henahan, representing Henahan Brothers, and George Lichtenwagen and companion, representing the Dutch Stone Building company, were present.

The Dutch Stone Building company's bid was $9,850, that of Henahan Bros. $9,715. The latter being the lowest the contract was given them.

The contract includes all the work of preparing for and building the foundation, from the excavations to the water table, both being included. The church will be a beautiful one.

RESTING TO-DAY.

Are the Election Board Members Preparatory to the Siege To-Night.

Peace and quietness prevails at the board of elections to-day. The campaign is closed and the great contest is on.

A full attendance was present at the meetings of the presiding judges last evening. The official ballots were distributed, which closed preliminary arrangements prior to to-day's election.

As has been predicted the vote is going to extend any preceding count returned in Lucas county for years.

The many admonitions to "vote early" were well heeded, as there was a crowd around all the booths in the city long before the doors were thrown open for business.

SWALLOWED HIS TEETH.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 3.—While eating his supper last evening, Thomas Flynn, a man 60 years of age, swallowed his false teeth and was choked to death.

DAMAGED BY FIRE.

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 3.—The lumber yard of Burnham and Davis was damaged $100,000 by fire last night. There is but a small insurance. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin.

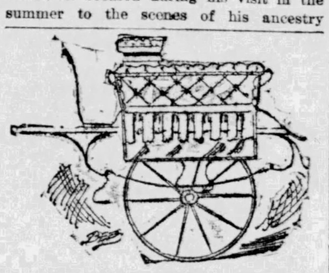
AN IRISH JAUNTING CAR,

Driven by United States Marshal Ben Wade—He Is Out of Sight.

Yesterday afternoon the hustling United States marshal, Benjamin Franklin Wade, (that's his name now) put in an appearance on the streets in a regulation old-fashioned Irish jaunting car, which he secured during his visit in the summer to the scenes of his ancestry



Ben Wade's Jaunting Car.

in Dublin, Ireland. The car is enough to make A. L. Spitzer, J. B. Ketcham, Billy Morehouse, Will Carrington and other Toledo lovers of swell turn-outs, green with envy. It was made by Thomas Deheney, of Dublin, and is constructed with a view to the greatest comfort. Six persons can be accommodated without crowding. Of course a Bee got aboard of the car and took a twirrel and can testify to the ease of the machine. It will likely come into good use in about four years when Ben may be on the hump for voters for sheriff, after Harry Dowling has served a couple of terms. In any event, the Irish jaunting car is pleasing to look upon, and is the only one to be found in this neck of the woods. Already Mr. Wade has been solicited to part with it, but if any one puts on agony in that car it will be done after a handsome premium is realized on the purchase.

COUNCILMAN CALDWELL

Is Happy to Know the Rolling Mill Has No Gas.

The Modern Silas Slick Talks with the Gas Trustees—Shortage in Gas—Meeting Last Evening.

The natural gas trustees held a session last evening and the only matter of special importance that came up was the application of Councilman J. W. Caldwell, of the East Side, for the construction of a gas line to some of his corner lots.

"Are you the man who said he was willing to give up his gas in order that the rolling mills should have a better supply?" asked President Parsons.

The wag of the council chamber laughed sarcastically.

"No, siree. I'm the man who shouted 'amen' when the fellow delivered his address against giving the mills gas. I was tickled to death to think you had cut it off."

Caldwell evidently had no use for the rolling mills or the people who are directly or indirectly benefited by that institution.

The gas cannot be supplied to the mills and Caldwell knows it, but in this as in politics, he is the same demagogue.

A contract with Graff M. Acklin for the construction of lines on Parker and Warren streets was ordered executed.

It was decided to lay a line on Indiana avenue, from Lenk to Hawley, at once, under the Kerlin Bros. contract.

Claims amounting to $17,850 were ordered paid.

Several applications for gas for factories were referred.

Lines were ordered laid on the following streets:

Stickney avenue, 40 feet.
Eagle Lane, 279 feet.
Lincoln avenue, 200 feet.
Broadway, 60 feet.
Bartlett, Twenty-first to Twenty-second.
Third street, East Toledo, 100 feet.
Locust, 120 feet.
Bloomfield, 150 feet.

Numerous small petitions were referred.

Mr. Parsons moved that steps be taken to have the offices lighted with electricity, same to be used by meter.

Councilman Caldwell asked for a line 1,200 feet long on the East Side on Navarre avenue. The matter was referred to the manager.

Mr. Brown introduced the following self-explanatory resolution, which was adopted:

Whereas, All contracts made by this board with manufacturers reserve right to give preference to domestic consumers, whenever, by reason of cold weather, or shortage of gas from any cause, the city is unable to satisfactorily supply all consumers; and the city did not, therefore, undertake to furnish manufacturers a full and uninterrupted supply of gas for any fixed period; and,

Whereas, By reason of the fact that the board now has upwards of 5,000 contracts for domestic consumption, it is necessary to make preparation for a satisfactory supply of gas to such domestic consumers; therefore,

Resolved, That the manager is hereby directed to at once notify all manufacturers having contracts for gas that in the opinion of this board they should immediately make provision for using other fuel; and the manager is directed to reduce the supply of gas to manufacturers, from time to time, and to such an extent, as may be necessary to maintain a full and adequate supply for domestic consumption.

THREE GENERATIONS

Voted To-day in Precinct F, Seventh Ward.

To-day the distinction is noted in precinct F, of the Seventh ward, the names of the parties Being Lyman White, father, Elmer White, son, and Irving White, grandson. Three of a kind, three for democracy, three for Campbell.

RIOTS IN THE COKE REGION.

Scottdale, Pa., Nov. 3.—A riot occurred near West Newton between a lot of coke workers and Italians. The Italians had liquor and were visited by the cokers. A fight ensued and both parties were badly cut up. Two of the Italians followed the cokers to their homes and while attempting to break into their houses were fired upon. One of the Italians was shot in the shoulder and the other through the stomach. Both will die.

EVANS' FINANCES.

Boston, Nov. 3.—The creditors of I. A. Evans met to-day. About 25 of those to whom the firm is indebted were present. After some discussion of the affairs of the firm twenty of those present agreed to the assignment, and it is believed that a majority of the creditors will do likewise.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Secretary Tracy said this afternoon that there are no grounds for the sensational reports which are being sent out from Washington, and that the uneasiness which has been felt in the Chilian matter, is not now applicable.

TYPHUS A GREAT WARRIOR.

Vienna, Nov. 3.—The epidemic of typhus in the Russian army on the banks of the Pruth has driven the army back, much to the gratification of the Roumanian military, who have been compelled to hold an exhausting vigil on the opposite side of the river.

BLAZE IN GEORGIA.

Albany, Ga., Nov. 3.—Wright, Weslockey and Brown's warehouse, together with a dozen houses adjoining it, and occupied by negroes, were destroyed by fire last evening. The losses will aggregate $100,000. Insurance not known.

SHE HAS FORGIVEN HIM.

Tiffin, O., Nov. 3.—(Special)—A telegram was received from Fred Hoffman, the tailor who deserted his wife and child October 19, for his wife to join him at Richmond, Ind. He has gone to work there and his forgiving wife left for that place to-day.

STRIKE SETTLED.

London, Nov. 3.—The strike of the Northern engineers which had its center on the Wearside, in Durham, has been settled by compromise. This strike compelled the idleness of 30,000 men.

Sixty Years' Bondage.

ALLENDALE, ILL., June 29, 1890

Dr. J. W. Bergen, Petersburg, Ind.:

DEAR SIR—I have been afflicted with asthma over sixty years, and have tried everything for it and for over nine months I had two doctors waiting on me, and they both gave me up to die. I commenced taking Dr. J. W. Bergen's Asthma Cure, and have taken three bottles of it and I am better than I have been for fifty years. I am able to do my own work, and can give the medicine great praise, and wish every one who is afflicted with that awful disease would give it a trial. Yours truly,

MRS. MARY HUNTER

THE OYSTER'S ANNUAL GREETING.

We R again—as we should be,
After our months of rest so free—
Quite ready unto church to go,
And make our best and bravest show.
Not like the preacher, with much talk
Of what he learned in forest walk,
Not like the maid in her new gown,
Admired by every beau in town.
Oh, no, we cannot talk, nor dress;
Dumb as an oyster, we confess
We R. We do not put on style,
And yet, quite often in a while
We're in the swim, yet you can win
By betting we're not taken in.
We're just the trade-mark of the stew,
And like the dudes of blood so blue,
We let you gaze; but when you'd touch
With lips profane, we say, "Not much."
We greet you with a juicy smile,
Yet we'll elude your every wile
To capture us; we can't be downed.
E'en though in briny depths we're drowned.
September calls; we frisk about,
And until May says: "Now get out,"
The social churchly we'll adorn
At night, and rise afresh each morn.
How do we thus renew our age?
We leave before the swallow stage.
And so you find us, old yet new,
In kettles whence soup's served to you.
We're in it, yet we always R.
When you would seek us, quite afar.

Cigarette smoking is said by a doctor to cause softening of the brain. The question is how he found it out, as no one with brains smokes cigarettes.

It is said to be an Asiatic myth that the soul of a poet passes into the body of a grasshopper at death, from the fact of the latter singing until it starves.

The average age of British soldiers is 27 years; their death rate is nine per 1,000, and of every 100, seventy are English, twenty Irish, eight Scotch and two Colonial.

According to reports Jerry Simpson is not doing badly in a financial way. It is said that he is averaging $350 income a week, or about what he used to get per annum. Of this sum he gets $96 as his congressional salary, $57 for his harvest and $200 for his campaign speeches.

The people of this country outread all the rest of mankind. A librarian says: The United States leads the world in the number and extent of its libraries. The public libraries of all Europe put together contain about 21,000,000 volumes; those of this country contain 50,000,000.

Chicago has no reverence, but plenty of audacity. The Pioneer Press says: For cool and irrefragible impudence commend us to the suggestion from Chicago that, providing the pope finds the Vatican too unpleasant as a residence, they would be glad to have him spend the summer of 1893 in that city.

The personal feeling is quite strong among the French. In the Parisian cemeteries it is customary to place metal boxes on the tombstones. Each box has a slit on the top and in it visitors drop their cards. The relatives can thus see the names of the persons who cherish the memory of the deceased.

There are 413 species of trees found within the United States, sixteen of which, when perfectly seasoned, are heavy enough to sink in water. The heaviest of these is the black ironwood (condelia ferra) of Florida, which is 16 to 30 per cent heavier than distilled water.

The earth is not wasting away to any great extent. Beside the "star dust" which is all the time falling upon it, meteors of various sizes reach the earth in many places. The largest known is that which fell on the plains of Incuman, in South America, which weighed about fifteen tons. A recent calculation shows that the increase of the earth's weight annually, from meteoric resources, is about 90,000 tons.

Every section its own orator seems to be the scheme. As the Chicago Tribune says: Two editors in North Carolina have begun the task of compiling a "Southern Speaker" for southern schools and colleges. Now let us have a "New England Speaker," a "Northwestern Speaker," a "Utah Speaker" and an "Indian Reservation Speaker" compiled by resident experts. It is a grand idea.

It doesn't make any difference what a man does any more, he can never keep out of the line of rivalry unless he is patented or copyrighted or in some way "protected." Lord Randolph Churchill is not to have a monopoly of aristocratic exploration. A party has recently started for Mashonaland and the contiguous countries, including among its members Lord Headley and Major Newitt.

It seems that the people are not permitted to have an unbroken series of successes, but Providence tries them to see of what material they are composed. It appears that the Dutch East Indies are much less prosperous than formerly. On account of the bad seasons and deficient harvests the coffee plantations have ceased to yield the great crops of previous years, and it seems to be impossible to find a crop which can readily be substituted for coffee.

The difficulties of navigating the Missouri river are confined to two places—the mouth of the Osage and Grand rivers, which are about one hundred and fifty miles apart—and the government is trying to overcome them. At the mouth of the Osage an effort is to be made to confine the channel for about nine miles. The Missouri is very wide there, the waters spreading over low lands, and there has been no distinct channel. The depth of the water has been increased from four and a half to seven feet. Piles 38 feet in length are forced into the sand and clay in five minutes by the use of a powerful stream of water that is forced through a pipe extending to the point of each pile. The stream clears away the sand and clay, and the pile sinks of its own weight. It is believed that after the work has been finished the river will be navigable during nearly all the year, except winter.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK.

History, Biography, Fiction, from Dodd, Mead & Co.

"Four French Women"—Three Volumes of "Makers of America"—"Battle Fields and Victory"—All About Wedding Etiquet.

Austin Dobson, a clever writer of prose and verse, contributed to periodical literature essays on Four French Women. Or, they were first published thus, but the author's preface to the volume which now encloses them, tells us they were originally intended for book form. He has carefully revised them, and Dodd, Mead & Co have given them good print, wide margins, fine illustrations and dainty crimson, white and gold covers. The subjects of the essays are: Madamoiselle De Corday, Madame Roland, the Princess De Lamballe, and Madame De Genlis. The story of the first two beautiful women who died on the scaffold, re-read as often as it is re-written, is familiar to the general reader. The other two are less known. Of the Princess De Lamballe, little indeed might have been recorded in history but for her heroic friendship for Queen Marie Antoinette and her tragic death in consequence. "She was beautiful and as good as she was beautiful," is written of her in French memoirs. When the fatal hour came she refused to swear her hatred to her beloved queen and to the royalty which she represented, and so her beautiful head was taken off, carried to a hairdresser, where the blonde curls were brushed and powdered, and it was then borne upon a pike staff at the head of a procession of revolutionists.

Madame De Genlis, contemporary with De Lamballe, is described as "the accomplished author, the governor of Louis Phillippe and the counsellor of Bonaparte." She wrote as many books as Voltaire (something like ninety), and on every subject; "for she had prepared maxims for the throne and precepts for the pantry." She was bright and beautiful, vain and versatile.

Mr. Dobson has done the reading public a kindness in revising and reprinting these sketches. They are fascinating studies of those dreadful times of which the world can scarcely know half the heroism, the romance, and the horror. Dodd, Mead & Co.

"The Makers of America" is the well-chosen title of a valuable addition to serial history, in course of publication by Dodd, Mead & Co., N. Y. The volumes are well printed and bound and are sold by the trade or the publishers for the uniform price of 75 cents apiece. And more than this, the choice of authors as well as of topics seems the best that could be made, in nearly every instance. "Christopher Columbus," by Charles Kendall Adams, president of Cornwell university; "Robert Morris," by Prof. W. G. Sumner, of Yale; Cotton Mather, by Prof. Wendell, of Harvard, are a few of the twenty-three volumes arranged for and announced thus far. The latest in the series, on the Bee table is "Sir William Johnson and the Six Nations," by William Elliot Griffis. Sir William Johnson spent the years of his manhood in the Mohawk Valley, the fairest portion of the Six Nations of the Iroquois confederation. The baronial halls of Sir William are still standing near the famous and beautiful river. Mr. Griffis, a long resident of the Mohawk valley, has made a close study of his subject and called into requisition every available aid to the end that the work should be valuable, reliable and interesting. He believes history and local tradition have done injustice to Johnson himself because of the torvism of his son and son-in-law, and their alliance with the red man. Mr. Griffis neither praises nor blames but aims to give facts and incidents in his well-written sketch, leaving readers to form their own conclusions. Johnson's manuscripts, bound and preserved in the state library at Albany, were a valuable source of information. The work is of value in the new material which it presents and entertaining as a romance in the glimpses it gives, of life in the "baronial halls" of the protestants against old world feudalism, the manners and customs of which they could not at once outgrow.

These books should be borne in mind for holiday giving.

"Thomas Hooker, Preacher, Founder, Democrat," by George Leon Walker, is a late issue in the same series. Thomas Hooker, English born, was the founder of the colony of Connecticut. He was the first pastor of the Hartford church, whose two hundred and fifty years of history was written by the same author in 1884. The English ministry of Mr. Hooker, his life in Holland, his emigration to Massachusetts and his active after life in connection with the formation of the commonwealth of Connecticut are pleasantly related and many a reader will have a new name in his rosary of pioneer American heroes after reading the book. Neatly bound in crimson cloth with gilt letters; uniform in price and style with the other volumes.

Henry Bruce's "Life of Gen. Houston," is the twenty-first volume in the series, "Makers of America." There is a dash of romance and chivalry in the life and deeds of "old Sam Houston," in his surroundings and the story of the struggle of Texas for independence, that stirs the blood. The author's preface contains a criticism on the "amount of bad literature he was obliged to go through in the preparation of this volume." He found some volumes by Mr. Parton "invaluable and perfect," "portions of Mr. H. H. Bancroft's History of the Pacific States" helpful. Mr. Bruce says he was "unwilling or unable to undertake the journey through Tennessee and Texas which would have constituted the ideal preliminary to a life of Houston." But he did the next best thing: he availed himself of the unmatched resources of the British museum." A Harvard friend indexed the book and so it was written.

Notwithstanding Mr. Bruce had such a time with bad literature two-thirds of his book is quotation from American authors, and it is a question if it would not have improved it if the other third had been included. American readers are not greatly concerning themselves about "the betrayal of Aaron Burr," which Mr. Bruce says "ruined the most fascinating career in American history." He speaks of Jackson as "this same Andrew Jackson," and of "the detestable faults of manner" of the Americans in pioneer Texas, who represented, "after all, civilization." And those "who can stand the mephitic atmosphere of the politics of this time" he refers them to Parton's "46th chapter." In summing up he confesses he can add little to what he has quoted, but says "Gen. Houston, like so many Americans, was a man stronger in quantity than in quality—the distinguished style of an Aaron Burr was not his."

The ridiculousness of such a comparison prompts an American to warn this English writer of American biography to "keep off the grass," figuratively speaking; for literally, a man who has never put a foot on Texas grass and whose knowledge of the Texan and the American is gathered in a museum, and whose standard of fascinating perfection is Aaron Burr—well, he would better not have boasted in his preface that "the value of his work is that he has certainly plucked it up like drowned honor by the locks' from the bottom of the unfathomed deep." No one but himself will give him credit for that kind of angling.

From the same house comes a jolly girls' story, written by Elizabeth W. Champney and entitled "Witch Winnie's Mystery, or the Oak Cabinet." Story of "A King's Daughter." The school-girl pranks are related with a naturalness that leads one to believe they are pictures from life with a few color touches. Perhaps the story of the doings of the mad-cap quintette, with Witch Winnie for leader, might lead some young readers as gay and merry but not so wise as those under the charge of Miss Noakes, (who was nick-named Snooks) into the belief that to keep the teachers in a boarding school continually on the alert for mischief-making was a legitimate ambition and a laudatory accomplishment for young lady pupils. But as those girls of the "Hornets" and the "Amen Corner" really founded a "Home of the Elder Brother" for little children and were loyal daughters of the King, such possible influence may be quite neutralized. Whoever has been or is a boarding-school girl will recognize the signs of reality, the nicknames, the friendships, the comical situations, the humor and the pathos of it all. It is a bright story with the divulgence of the old oak cabinet's secret for the climax, a popular sequel to "Witch Winnie," though entirely independent of the preceding volume. Mrs. Champney's popular "Vassar Girls Abroad" established her a favorite with young readers. Printed on enameled paper and handsomely bound.

"Good Form Weddings, Formal and Informal" (considerable "form" in the title) is a neat hand book on an important topic, published by the Fred'k A. Stokes company, New York. Its suggestions and directions will surely prove helpful to a host of interested ones. To know how to do anything in the most graceful and acceptable manner, is half the battle. All the details of good-form engagements, weddings, receptions, etc., are included in this neat 75-cent book.

Willis J. Abbot, who made an enviable fame as a writer of history for the young, by his "Blue Jackets of '61"; "Blue Jackets of 1812"; "Blue Jackets of '76"; "Battle Fields of '61," and "Battle Fields and Campfires," has added another to the series: "Battle Fields and Victory, a Narrative of the Principal Military Operations of the Civil War from the Accession of Grant to the Command of the Union Armies to the End of the War." A comprehensive title which well describes the character of the work. It is history presented in its most attractive and readable form. Beautifully printed on satin-faced paper with numerous handsome full-page engravings, stars and stripes cover and altogether a grand holiday book.

"The life of Sir John Franklin," by Capt. Albert Hastings Markham, is issued by Dodd, Mead & Co, in their "Great Explorers" series. The element of personality introduced into the work adds greatly to its charm. Miss Sophia Carcroft, the talented niece of Franklin, became interested with Capt. Markham in its preparation, as did also Sir Leopold McClintock, the daring explorer who forced from the ice regions of the north Arctic the secret of the fate of Sir John. The literary work is exceptionally well performed, and the publishers have given it attractive setting with numerous maps and illustrations. The narrative extends from childhood to the tragic close of the hero's life, and is the most comprehensive and satisfactory work on the subject of Arctic explorations placed before the reading public in many a day.

Of the Jewish People in the Land of Pharaoh.

Slavery Began When, Starving to Death, They Sold Themselves in Payment for Corn

Brooklyn, Nov. 3.—The subject of Dr. Talmage's sermon Sunday was "Bricks without Straw. His text was Isaiah xix. 1: "The burden of Egypt."

What is all this excitement about in the streets of Cairo, Egypt, this December morning 1889? Stand back! We hear loud voices and see the crowds of people retreating to the sides of the streets. The excitement of others becomes our own excitement. Footmen come in sight. They have a rod in the hand and tasseled cap on head, and their arms and feet are bare. Their garb is black to the waist, except as threaded with gold, and the rest is white. They are clearing the way for an official dignitary in a chariot or carriage. They are swift and sometimes run thirty or forty miles at a stretch in front of an equipage. Make way! They are the fleetest-footed men on earth, but soon die, for the human frame was not made for endurance. I asked all around me who the man in the carriage was, but no one seemed to know. Yet as I fell back with the rest to the wall I said, This is the old custom found all up and down the Bible, footmen running before the rulers, demanding obeisance, as in Genesis before Joseph's chariot the people were commanded, "Bow the knee," and as I see the swift feet of the men, followed by the swift feet of the horses, how those old words of Jeremiah rushed through my mind: "If thou hast run with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, how canst thou contend with horses?"

Now, my hearers, in this course of sermons I am only serving you as footman, and clearing the way for your coming into the wonders of Egyptology, a subject that I would have you study far beyond anything that can be said in the brevity of pulpit utterance. Two hundred and eighty-nine times does the Bible refer to Egypt and Egyptians. No wonder, for Egypt was the mother of nations. Egypt, the mother of Greece; Greece, the mother of Rome; Rome, the mother of England; England, the mother of our own land. According to that, Egypt is our great-great grandmother. On other Sabbaths I left you studying what they must have been in their glory: the Hypostyle Hall of Karnac, the architectural miracles at Luxor, the Colonnade of Horemheb, the cemeteries of Memphis, the value of a kingdom in one monument, the Sphinx, which with lips of stone speaks loud enough to be heard across the centuries, Heliopolis and Zoan, the conundrum of the archaeologists. But all that extravagance of palace and temple and monument was the cause of an oppression high as heaven, and deep as hell. The weight of those blocks of stone heavier than any modern machinery could lift came down upon Hebrew slaves, and their blood mixed the mortar for the trowels.

We saw again and again on and along the Nile a boss workman roughly smite a subordinate who did not please him. It is no rare occurrence to see long lines of men under heavy burdens passing by taskmasters at short distances, lashing them as they go by into greater speed, and then these workmen, exhausted with the blasting heats of the day, lying down upon the bare ground, suddenly chilled with the night air, crying out in prayer, "Ya! Allah!" "Ya! Allah!" which means Oh! God! Oh! God! But what must have been the olden times cruelty shown by the Egyptians towards their Israelitish slaves is indicated by a picture in the Beni-Hassan tombs, where a man is held down on his face by two men and another holds up the victim's feet while the officials beat the bare back of the victim, every stroke, I have no doubt, fetching the blood.

Now you see how the Pharaohs could afford to build such costly works. It cost them nothing for wages, nothing but the tears and blood of the toilers, and tears and blood are a cheap drink for devils. "Bricks without straw" may not sugest so much hardship until you know that the bricks were usually made with "crushed straw," straw crushed by the feet of oxen in the threshing, and this crushed straw denied to the workmen, they had to pick up here and there a piece of stubble or gather rushes from the waterside. This story of the Bible is confirmed by the fact that many of the brick walls of Egypt have on the lower layers bricks made with straw, but the higher layers of brick made out of rough straw, or rushes from the river bank, the truth of the book of Exodus thus written in the brick walls discovered by the modern explorers.

That government outrage has always been a characteristic of Egyptian rulers. Taxation to the point of starvation was the Egyptian rule in Bible times. A modern traveler gives the figures concerning the cultivation of 17 acres, the value of the yield of the field stated in piastres:

Produce	1,802
Expenses	993 1-2
Clear produce	808 1-2
Taxes	493
Amount cleared by the farmer	315 1-2

Or, as my authority declares, 70 per cent. of what the Egyptian farmer makes, is paid for taxes to the government. Now, that is not so much taxation as assassination. What think you of that? You who groan under heavy taxes in America? I have heard that in Egypt the working people have a song like this: "They starve us, they starve us, they beat us, they beat us, but there's some one above, there's some one above, who will punish them well." But 70 per cent. of government tax in Egypt is a mercy as compared to what the Hebrew slaves suffered there in Bible times. They got nothing but food hardly fit for a dog and their clothing was one rag, and their roof a burning sky by day and the stars of heaven by night. You say, "Why did they stand it?" Because they had to stand it. You see along back in the world's twilight there was a famine in Canaan, and our Jacob and his sons came to Egypt for bread. The old man's boy Joseph, was prime minister, and Joseph—I suppose the father and brothers called him Joe, for it does not make any difference how much a boy is advanced in worldly success, his brothers and his sisters always call him by the same name that he was called by when two years old—Joseph, by Pharaoh's permission, gave to his family, who had just arrived the richest part of Egypt, the Westchester farms, or the Lancaster farms of the ancients. Jacob's descendants rapidly multiplied. After awhile Egypt took a turn at famine, and those descendants of Jacob, the Israelites, came to a great store-house which Joseph had provided, and paid in money for corn. But after awhile the money gave out and then they paid in cattle. After awhile the cattle were all in possession of the government and then the Hebrews bought corn from the government by surrendering themselves as slaves.

Then began slavery in Egypt. The government owned all the Hebrews. And let modern lunatics, who in America propose handing over telegraph companies and railroads and other things to be run by government, see the folly of letting government get its hand on everything. I would rather trust the people than any government the United States ever had or will have. Woe unto the day when legislators and congresses and administrations get possession of anything more than it is necessary for them to have. That would be the revival in this land of that old Egyptian tyranny for which God has never had anything but red-hot thunderbolts. But through such unwise processes Israel was enslaved in Egypt, and the long line of agonies began all up and down the Nile. Heavier and sharper fell the lash, hungrier and ghastlier grew the workmen, louder and longer went up the prayer, until three millions of the enslaved were crying, "Ya! Allah! Ya! Allah!" Oh! God! Oh! God!

Where was help to come from? Not the throne, Pharaoh sat upon that. Not the army, Pharaoh's officers commanded that. Not the surrounding nations, Pharaoh's threat made them all tremble. Not the gods Ammon and Osiris, or the goddess Isis, for Pharaoh built their temples out of the groans of this diabolical servitude. But one hot day the Princess Thonoris, the daughter of Pharaoh, while in her bathing house on the banks of the Nile, has word brought her that there is a baby afloat on the river in a cradle made out of big leaves. Of course there is excitement all up and down the banks, for an ordinary baby in an ordinary cradle attracts smiling attention, but an infant in a cradle of papyrus rocking on a river arouses not only admiration but curiosity.

Who made that boat? Who made it water-tight with bitumen? Who launched it? Reckless of the crocodiles who lay basking themselves in the sun, the maidens wade in and snatch up the child, and first one carries him and then another carries him, and all the way up the bank he runs a gauntlet of caresses, till Thonoris rushes out of the bathing-house and says: "Beautiful foundling, I will adopt you as my own. You shall wear the Egyptian crown and sit on the Egyptian throne." No! No! No! He is to be the emancipator of the Hebrews. Tell it among all those who are now writhing under the lash, tell it among all the castles of Memphis, and Heliopolis, and Zoan, and Thebes. Before him a sea will part. On the mountain top, alone this one will receive from the Almighty a law that is to be the foundation of all good law while the world lasts. When he is dead God will come down on Nebo and alone bury him, no man or woman or angel worthy to attend the obsequies. The child grows up and goes out and studies the horrors of Egyptian oppression and suppresses his indignation, for the right time has not come, although once for a minute he let fly and when he saw a task-master put the whip on the back of a workman who was doing his best and heard the poor fellow cry and saw the blood spurt, Moses doubled up his fist and struck him on the temple till the cruel villain rolled over in the sand examinate and never swung the lash again. Served him right!

But, Moses, are you going to undertake the impossibilities? You feel that you are going to free the Hebrews from bondage. But where is your army? Where is your navy? Not a sword have you, not a spear, not a chariot, not a horse. Ah! God was on his side, and he has an army of his own. The snow storms are on God's side; witness the snow banks in which the French army of invasion were buried on their way back from Moscow. The rain is on his side; witness the 18th of June at Waterloo when the tempests so saturated the road that the attack could not be made on Wellington's forces until 11 o'clock, and he was strong enough to hold out until reinforcements arrived. Had that battle been opened at 5 o'clock in the morning instead of at 11 the destiny of Europe would have been turned the wrong way. The heavy rain decided everything. So also are the winds and the waves on God's side; witness the Armada with 150 ships and 2,650 guns and 8,000 sailors and 20,000 soldiers, sent out by Phillip II. of Spain to conquer England. What became of those men and that shipping? Ask the wind and waves all along the English and Irish coasts. The men and the ships all wrecked or drowned or scattered. So I suppose that Moses will be helped in rescuing the Israelites by a special weaponry.

To the Egyptians the Nile was a deity. Its waters were then, as now, very delicious. It was the finest natural beverage of all the earth. We have no such love for the Hudson, and Germans have no such love for the Rhine, and Russians have no such love for the Volga, as the Egyptians have love for the Nile. But one day when Pharaoh comes down to this river Moses takes a stick and whips the waters, and they turn into the gore of a slaughter house, and through the sluices and fish ponds the incarnadined liquid backs up into the land and the malodor whelms everything from mud hovel to throne-room. Then came the frogs with horrible croak all over everything. Then this people, cleanly almost to fastidiousness, were infested with insects that belong to the filthy and unkempt, and the air buzzed and buzzed with flies, and then the distemper started cows to bellowing and horses to neighing and camels to groaning, as they rolled over and over and expired. And then the boils, one of which will put a man in wretchedness, came in clusters from the top of the head to the sole of the foot. And then the clouds dropped hail and lightning. And then locusts came in, swarms of them, worse than the grasshoppers ever were in Kansas, and then darkness dropped for three days so that the people could not see their hand before their face, great surges of midnight covering them. And last of all, on the night of the 18th of April, about eighteen hundred years before Christ, the Destroying Angel sweeps past; and hear it all night long, the flap! flap! flap! of his awful wings until Egypt rolled on, a great hearse, the eldest child dead in every Egyptian home. The eldest son of Pharaoh expired that night in the palace, and all along the streets of Memphis and Heliopolis and all up and down the Nile there was a funeral wail that would have rent the fold of the unnatural darkness if it had not been impenetrable.

The Israelitish homes, however, were untouched. But these homes were full of preparation, for now is your chance, O ye wronged Hebrews! Snatch up what pieces of food you can and to the desert! Its simoons are better than the bondage you have suffered. Its scorpions will not sting so sharply as the wrongs that have stung you all your lives. Away! The man who was cradled in the basket of papyrus on the Nile will lead you. Up! Up! This is the night of your rescue. They gather together at a signal. Alexander's armies and all the armies of olden time were led by torches on high poles, great crests of fire; and the Lord Almighty kindles a torch not held by human hands, but by omnipotent hand. Not made out of straw or oil, but kindled out of the atmosphere, such a torch as the world never saw before and never will see again. It reached from the earth unto the heaven, a pillar of fire, that pillar practically saying, "This way! March this way!" On that supernatural flambeau more than a million refugees set their eyes. Moses and Aaron led on. Then come the families of Israel. Then come the herds and flocks moving on across the sands to what is the beach of waters now called Bahr-el-Kulzum, but called in the Bible the Red Sea. And when I dipped my hands in its blue waters the heroics of the Mosaic passage rolled over me.

After three days' march the Israelitish refugees encamped for the night on the bank of the Red sea. As the shadows begin to fall, in the distance is seen the host of Pharaoh in pursuit. There were 600 finest war chariots followed by common chariots rolling at full speed. And the rumbling of the wheels and the curse of the infuriated Egyptians came down with the darkness. But the Lord opened the crystal gates of Bahr-el-Kulzum and the enslaved Israelites passed into liberty and then the crystal gates of the sea rolled shut against the Egyptian pursuers. It was about 2 o'clock in the morning when the interlocked axletrees of the Egyptian chariots could not move an inch either way. But the Red sea unhitched the horses and unhelmeted the warriors, and left the proud host a wreck on the Arabian sands. Then two choruses arose, and Moses led the men in the one and Miriam led the women in the other, and the women beat time with their feet. The record says: "All the women went out after her with timbrels and with dances. And Miriam answered them, Sing ye to the Lord, for he hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea." What a thrilling story of endurance and victory. The greatest triumph of Handel's genius was shown in his immortal dramatic oratorio, "Israel in Egypt." He had given to the world the oratorio of "Esther and Deborah," and "Athaliah," but reserved for his mightiest exertion at the full height of his powers the marshaling of all musical instruments to the description in harmony of the scenes on which we this morning dwell. He gave 27 days to this production, with its 28 choruses, enthralling his own time and all after time with his "Israel in Egypt."

So the burden of oppression was lifted but another burden of Egypt is made up of deserts. Indeed, Africa is a great continent for deserts, Libyan desert, Sahara desert, deserts here and there, and yonder, condemning vast regions of Africa to barrenness, one of the deserts three thousand miles long and a thousand miles wide. But all those deserts will yet be flooded, and so made fertile. De Lesseps says it can be done, and he who planned the Suez canal which marries the Red sea and the Mediterranean knows what he is talking about. The human race is so multiplied that it must have more cultivated lands, and the world must abolish its deserts. Eight hundred million of the human race are now living on lands not blest with rains, but dependent on irrigation, and we want by irrigation to make room for 800,000,000 more. By irrigation the prophecy will be fulfilled, and "the desert will blossom as the rose." So from Egypt the burden of sand will be lifted.

Another burden of Egypt to be lifted is the burden of Mohammedanism, although there are some good things about that religion. Its disciples must always wash before they pray, and that is five times a day. A commendable grace is cleanliness. Strong drink is positively forbidden by Mohammedanism, and though some may have seen a drunken Mahommedan, I never saw one. It is a religion of sobriety. Then they are not ashamed of their devotions. When the call for prayers is sounded from the minarets the Mohammedan immediately unrolls the rug on the ground and falls on his knees, and crowds of spectators are to him no embarrassment; reproof to many a Christian who omits his prayer if people are looking. But Mohammedanism, with its polygamy, blights everything it touches; Mohammed, its founder, had four wives, and his followers are the enemies of good womanhood. Mohammedanism puts its curse on all Egypt, and by setting up a sinful Arab higher than the immaculate Christ, is an overwhelming blasphemy. May God help the brave and consecrated missionaries who are spending their lives in combating it.

But before I forget it I must put more emphasis upon the fact that the last outrage that resulted in the liberation of the Hebrews was their being compelled to make bricks without straw. That was the last straw that broke the camel's back. God would allow the despotism against his people to go no further. Making brick without straw!

That oppression still goes on. Demand of your wife appropriate wardrobe and bountiful table without providing the means necessary: Bricks without straw. Cities demanding in the public school faithful and successful instruction without giving the teachers competent livelihood: Bricks without straw. United States government demanding of senators and congressmen at Washington full attendance to the interests of the people, but on compensation which may be done well enough when 25 cents went as far as a dollar now, but in these times not sufficient to preserve their influence and respectability. Bricks without straw. In many parts of the land churches demanding of pastors vigorous sermons and sympathetic service on starvation salary, sanctified Ciceros on $400 a year: Bricks without straw. That is one reason why there are so many poor bricks. In all departments, bricks not even, or bricks that crumble, or bricks that are not bricks at all. Work adequately paid for is worth more than work not paid for. More straw and then better bricks.

But in all departments there are Pharaohs: Sometimes Capital a Pharaoh, and sometimes Labor a Pharaoh. When Capital prospers, and makes a large percentage on its investment, and declines to consider the needs of its operatives, and treats them as so many human machines, their nerves no more than the bands on the factory wheel—then Capital is a Pharaoh. On the other hand, when workmen, not regarding the anxieties and business struggles of the firm employing them, and at a time when the firm are doing their very best to meet an important contract and need all hands busy to accomplish it, at such a time to have his employes make a strike and put their employers into extreme perplexity and severe loss—then Labor becomes a Pharaoh of the worst oppression, and must look out for the judgments of God.

When in December of 1889, at the Museum at Boulac, Egypt, I looked at the mummies of the old Pharaohs, the very miscreants who diabolized centuries, and I saw their teeth and hair and finger nails and the flesh drawn tight over their cheek bones, the sarcophagi of these dead monarchs side by side, and I was so fascinated I could only with difficulty get away from the spot, I was not looking upon the last of the Pharaohs. All over the old world old merchants playing the Pharaoh over young merchants, old lawyers playing the Pharaoh over young lawyers, old doctors playing the Pharaoh over young doctors, old artists playing the Pharaoh over young artists, old ministers playing the Pharaoh over young ministers. Let all oppressors, whether in homes, in churches, in stores, in offices, in factories, in social life or political life, in private life or public life, know that God hates oppressors, and they will all come to grief here or hereafter.

Pharaoh thought he did a fine thing, a cunning thing, a decisive thing, when for the complete extinction of the Hebrews in Egypt he ordered all the Hebrew boys massacred, but he did not find it so fine a thing when his own first born that night of the destroying angel dropped dead on the mosaic floor at the foot of the porphyry pillar of the palace. Let all the Pharaohs take warning. Some of the worst of them are on a small scale in households as when a man, because his arm is strong and his voice loud, dominates his poor wife into domestic slavery. There are thousands of such cases where the wife is a lifetime serf, her opinion disregarded, her tastes insulted, her existence a wretchedness, though the world may not know it. It is a Pharaoh that sits at the head of the table, and a Pharaoh that tyrannizes that home. There is no more abhorrent Pharaoh than a domestic Pharaoh. There are thousands of women to whom death is passage from Egypt to Canaan, because they get rid of a cruel task master. What an accursed monster is that man who keeps his wife in dread about family expenses, and must be cautious how she introduces an article of millinery or womanly wardrobe without humiliating consultation and apology. Who is that man acting so? For six months—in order to win that woman's heart, he sent her every few days a bouquet wound with white ribbon, and an endearing couplet, and took her to concerts and theaters, and helped her into carriages as though she were a princess, and ran across the room to pick up her pocket handkerchief with the speed of an antelope, and on marriage day promised all that the liturgy required, saying, "I will!" with an emphasis that excited the admiration of all spectators.

But now he begrudges her two cents for a postage stamp, and wonders why she rides across Brooklyn bridge when the foot passage costs nothing. He thinks now she is awful plain, and he acts like the devil, while he thunders out, "Where did you get that new hat from? Where's my breakfast? Do you call that coffee? Didn't I tell you to sew on that button? Want to see your mother, do you? You are always going to see your mother! What are you whimpering about? Hurry up now and get my slippers! Where's the newspaper. The look, the impatience—the cruelty of a Pharaoh. That is what gives so many women a cowed-down look. Pharaoh! you had better take your iron heel off that woman's neck, or God will help you remove your heel. She says nothing. For the sake of avoiding a scandal she keeps silent; but her tears and wrongs have gone into a record that you will have to meet as certainly as Pharaoh had to meet hail and lightning and darkness, and the death angel. God never yet gave to any man the right to tyrannize a woman, and what a sneak you are to take advantage of the marriage, and because she cannot help herself, and under the shelter of your own home out-Pharaoh the Egyption oppressor. There is something awfully wrong in a household where the woman is not considered of as much importance as the man. No room in this world for any more Pharaohs!

But it rolls over on me with great power the thought that we have all been slaves down in Egypt, and sin has been our taskmaster, and again and again we have felt its lash. But Christ has been our Moses to lead us out of bondage, and we are forever free. The Red sea of a Saviour's sacrifice rolls deep and wide between us and our aforetime bondage, and though there may be deserts yet for us to cross we are on the way to the Promised Land. Thanks be unto God for this emancipating gospel! Come up out of Egypt all ye who are yet enslaved. What Christ did for us he will do for you. "Exodus!" is the word. Exodus! Instead of the brick kilns of Egypt come into the empurpled vineyards of God where one cluster of grapes is bigger than the one that the spies brought to the Israelites by the brook Eschol, though that cluster was so large that it was "borne between two on a staff."

Welcome all by sin oppressed,
Welcome to his sacred rest;
Nothing brought him from above,
Nothing but redeeming love.

ABOUT DRINKING-WATER.

Large Cities Investigating Their Water Supply—Discovery of Disease Germs—Smaller Cities Also in Danger.

New York and other cities are now agitating the very serious question of their water supply. Investigation has brought to light the fact that impure waters, in spite of expensive attempts at purification, will find their way into the streams from which the water supply is drawn. It has been thought for years that a stream running in the open air, will cleanse itself partly by settling of the impure matter and partly by aeration but it has recently been decided by the proper authorities that no such process of self purification takes place.

As in most places the water supply is drawn from streams which pass through and where cattle, horses or sheep graze, a very general movement has taken place throughout the United States, towards the purification of water for drinking purposes in the home itself. The most popular and effective method is to mix a little pure whiskey with the water; filtration it seems does not get rid of the presence of poisonous nitrates. It is to be impressed on all those who take this method of preserving their health that the whiskey used must be pure. Duffy's Pure Malt is highly recommended by leading doctors and scientists as being the purest medicinal whiskey on the market. Illness, headaches, nervousness, liability to sore throat, peculiar pains in the back and many other small but troublesome ills frequently have their origin in impure drinking water. The mixing of a little Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey with drinking water will render it incapable of producing these or even the worse effects of typhoid fever and other malignant fevers of the same type. By-the-by it will be well to remember when you call at your druggist's or grocer's for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, that it is the only pure medicinal one, so do not be willing to take a substitute recommended as "just as good."

THIS IS THE BEST equipped, the largest and most reliable Medical Dispensary in the United States for the cure of all the above named diseases as well as OLD SORES and ULCERS, SYPHILITIC BLOOD POISONS, SALT RHEUM, BARBER'S ITCH, etc., which are by the mode of treatment practiced at this institution rapidly and radically cured.
THE TREATMENT given at this Dispensary is peculiarly our own and is different from that given by any medical practitioner, the remedies used being the discoveries of our Dr. Samuel Charles Evans, who has given all of the best years of his life to their production and perfection. They are infallible. Their efficacy is amply attested by the thousands of cases that have been performed by our treatment. No one need suffer from the many ills above enumerated because we can guarantee a cure if the sufferer will but call at our Dispensary or write us.
OUR GUARANTEE IS NO CURE NO PAY. In proof of which we are willing and anxious to take the cases of RESPONSIBLE AFFLICTED PERSONS ON THAT BASIS. Those suffering from NERVOUS DEBILITY, the symptoms of which are a dull, distressed mind, which unfits them for performing the business and social duties of life, making happy marriages an utter impossibility, causing depression of spirits, evil forebodings of the future, feeling as tired in the morning as when retiring; lost manhood, trembling, confusion of thoughts, watery and weak eyes, constipation, paleness, pain and weakness in the limbs, etc., should consult us at once and be immediately restored to strong, vigorous MANHOOD.

Nervous Debility.
Those suffering from Nervous Debility, the symptoms of which are a dull distressed mind, which unfits them for performing business and social duties; make happy marriages impossible, distress the action of the heart, causing flushes of heat, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, cowardice, fear, dreams, short breathings, melancholy, tire easily of company and have a preference to be alone; feeling as tired in the morning as when retiring; lost manhood, white bone deposits in the urine, nervousness, trembling, confusion of thoughts, watery and weak eyes, dyspepsia, constipation, paleness, pain and weakness in the limbs, etc., should consult us immediately and be restored to health. By a wise course of treatment, adapted to your age, sex and physical condition, the tone of your system can be raised, the tendency to impure thoughts removed, and the strength and vigor of health restored to the debilitated organs.

Organal Weakness
Immediately cured and full vigor restored. This distressing affliction which renders life a burden and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by victims of improper indulgence. The most chaste must acknowledge that the passions are the great magnet by which the whole world is attracted. Destroy them and what have we? Man is no longer interested in the opposite sex; the interchange of that blissful repose which attracts and interests the whole world, exists no longer; man ceases to be what God made him; the world is no longer interesting to him, and remorse and disappointment are his constant companions. We have devoted years to the study of the best methods of treating the various forms in which this disease manifests itself. We treat every case on its own merits; and thousands to-day join in thanking us for the new lease of life and happiness our skill has opened up to them.

Marriage.
Married persons or young men contemplating marriage, aware of physical weakness, loss of procreative powers, impotency, or any other disqualifications, speedily relieved. He who places himself under our care may confide in our honor as gentlemen, and confidently rely on our skill as Physicians. We have had many years experience in hospitals and private practice and are graduates of the most eminent Medical Colleges of the U. S.

Young Men who have become victims of SOLITARY VICE—that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave, thousands of young men of exalted talent and brilliant intellect, may call with full confidence.
We address all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgence and solitary habits which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for business, study, society or marriage.

A Guarantee

The cheapest furnace man in the world will give you a guarantee to heat your house. But what satisfaction do you get when the weather is at zero, or 10 below, and the furnace does not heat your house? The change cannot be made then, and you must suffer until the weather will permit to make the change. Is it not best to give the job to some one whose reputation is a guarantee that your house will be heated during the coldest weather?

Address
E. A. EVERSMAN
Hardware Dealer,

A NORWEGIAN COURTSHIP.

Tall? Yes, very. She stood a head above the average man.

Slight No. That is too poetical a word to be in any way applied to the heroine of this little tale, whose lean, scrawny figure looked for all the world like a series of badly connected angles, and whose stooping shoulders and narrow chest were clad in a faded black jacket.

This garment, with its rusty surface and pulled seams, suited well the sad looking woman into whose dreary life came one little bit of color, which I shall try to describe.

Her face corresponded well with the rest of her appearance, for it was faded and worn, and surrounded by a fringe of straight, dusty brown hair, pulled tightly back from the sallow, weary face, whose one redeeming feature was the eyes—dark gray, and oh! so sad.

She had that expression of wistful waiting sometimes seen in the eyes of a faithful dog who has lost his master, and seems ever to wait, always patiently, and to watch ever expectantly for the beloved face.

She was a Norwegian, named Etta, and lived in our family as cook for nearly a year.

Weeks passed by and early autumn, which had brought her to us, shed leafy tears, and departed suddenly, leaving us all unprepared for winter's advent, which announced itself in a cold, dismal rain.

Up to this time Etta had never received a letter or any communication from the outside world. She never left the house, and scorned the idea of an afternoon out. However, on this drizzly day came a surprise, a great surprise, for Etta was discovered holding an open letter tightly grasped in one hand. But when she found herself regarded, it was hastily thrust into a voluminous pocket in her skirt.

Now, this pocket was a marvel in itself, as it could hold myriads of things. Why, one day I saw her produce a pillow case, a work box, scissors and a brass thimble at one fell swoop; at another time—but I am wandering far away from the letter and its consequences.

The mysterious epistle was seen several times again, and those glimpses showed it to be worn and rumpled with much reading. No doubt it would have been read and re-read out of existence, had not another, fresh and clean, replaced the first.

This I took from the postman, and so had a chance to see the uneven, characterless writing, the Christiana postmark, and Norwegian stamp. It was followed a week later by another, then another.

I became interested, for I felt I was on the track of a real, live romance.

The pale, tired face seemed to grow brighter in those days, and for the first time Etta made frequent trips to the city, returning laden with bundles of every size and description. All her spare time was now employed in sewing. Calicos and prints were made and laid aside. For some reason or other Etta was replenishing her clean, but scant and somewhat dilapidated wardrobe.

Another link in the chain! thought I, and began to imagine the arrival of a stalwart Norwegian lover left in Norway two years before, when she had come to try her fortune in America.

Letters came more frequently, and Etta grew correspondingly brighter and cheerier—she even seemed to try to hold herself more erectly, for often the bent shoulders were suddenly straightened as she went about her work. Her voice, formerly so tired and hopeless, took on a more cheerful tone.

Not the least remarkable of Etta's pecularities was her manner of speaking; slowly and lispingly came the broken English, which was at first so hard to understand. Such a sad mixture of her mother tongue and this new, strange language, such verbal combinations and misplaced plurals were never heard before.

About this time I mentioned my romantic notions to my mother, but she only laughed, being entirely unable to connect Etta's sad appearance with a lover, Nowegian or of any other land. She called me a romancer, but still I felt sure I was right.

Sooner than I expected came the chance to vindicate myself, for, the next day as I sat idly by the window watching the passers-by, my attention was attracted by a queer little figure way dobn the street, which came on toward the house at a rattling pace, gaily swinging a huge cane, and puffing vigorously at a mammoth cigar. At a distance, it was impossible to tell whether he was boy or man, such a comical, little figure he was, dressed in a snuff-colored suit, with a rose in his buttonhole, and the tiniest derby imaginable tilted over one ear.

Gazing laughingly at him, I was just telling my mother to look at that absurd little creature, when what was our surprise to see Etta, the staid, the quiet, dash wildly across the lawn, rush down to the gate, and throwing her arms about the little fellow's neck, kiss him first on one cheek, and then on the other.

The man, after a few quiet but earnest struggles, managed to free himself from her long, thin arms, and looked up into her face, so high above him, with pleasure surely, but without a trace of lover-like ardor.

On closer inspection, it proved to be such a funny, rosy, childish face that it was impossible to look at it without laughing. Etta seemed to find it so, for, smiling happily, she escorted him back to the house, her long arm linked in his short one, almost lifting him from the ground at every step, and presently we heard the low monotone of their voices in the kitchen below.

Not the least queer thing about this queerest of men was a yellow shock of hair, plastered down in carefully arranged scallops all around his chubby face. I suppose it never occurred to him that the back of his head was ever seen, for there the hair stood out in bristly points.

Soon Etta appeared, and blushing and hesitating, said, "My cousin haf comed from Christiana."

That was all, but my theory was proved, and I made use of that time-worn and aggravating phrase "What did I tell you?"

Days came and went, and so did the little Norwegian, but nothing was said of an approaching marriage. Parcels poured in upon us, and Etta sewed steadily on. Each afternoon Auguste (we learned his name) appeared, apparently propelled by the regular motion of the big cane. Somehow he always seemed like a piece of machinery, for his appearance never changed—always the snuff-colored suit, the little hat and the button-hole bouquet; and he seemed to go and come mechanically, enveloped in a cloud of smoke puffed from the big cigar.

Etta owned one thing strangely out of keeping with her other possessions—it was a large gold watch, attached to an old-fashioned chain, from which dangled two or three odd foreign-looking charms of fine workmanship. She was very fond of it, as it had belonged to her mother, and wore it always till at last it seemed almost a part of herself. Seeing her without it one day, I exclaimed immediately, as I thought she must have lost it.

She waited a moment before replying, and then said slowly, "I haf lend it to my cousin."

She then told me that Auguste was a barber by trade, and had come to America with money she had sent him for the trip.

After the disappearance of the watch Auguste came less frequently, and as time went on seldom appeared oftener than once a week. There was no more sewing, and Etta began to look more as of old. Little by little the happy light faded from her face, and the gray eyes became sadder by contrast, perhaps, than before.

A time came when weeks passed without a sight of the little Norwegian, but one day a letter arrived for Etta in the same crooked writing. Some time later in the day, going into the kitchen, I found Etta leaning on the table, the letter crumpled in her clinched hands, and her face buried in her arms.

I touched her gently on the shoulder, but got no other response than the low, stifled sobs which shook the poor, thin body from head to foot. At last she raised her sorrow-stricken face, and lifting her eyes to mine, said slowly, with lisping accent, "I haf to go vay; I haf sorrow, great sorrow."

She would tell but little of her story. She was to have married her cousin in a few weeks time, but he had tired of her, and that day a letter had come from him, first begging her to forgive him, and then telling that he had sold her treasured watch, and by the time she got that letter would have sailed on a vessel bound for Norway.

"Shall you, too, go home?" I said.

Sadly and slowly came the answer, "No," and I felt that with the utterance of that little word she gave up all hope, and renounced forever all thought of the happiness she had been picturing for herself the last few months, as she sat sewing steadily, only pausing now and then, with a little flush in her pale cheeks, to softly steal a hand into her pocket and touch the letters she always carried there.

Next morning Etta could not be found. In a corner of her room stood a little hair trunk labelled with a Norwegian address and filled with the garments so recently finished. It was corded up and sent to Christiana; it may have reached its destination, or it may not, its fate is as uncertain as Etta's own. The poor woman, tired, disappointed and hopeless, had vanished that night, taking with her little else than her sad, sad thoughts.

I often picture her with her stooping shoulders and pallid, tear-stained face, every vestige of love and hope, gone out, wandering away into the night and gazing up at the stars, so serene, and far away, as she murmurs: "Forsaken, forsaken."—Boston Herald.

RETICENCE OF THE INDIAN.

There is Very Little Method or Form in His Most Famous Councils.

No one knows where an Indian is going. Travelling across the plain in a stage or an ambulance you will see him afar off galloping as if he had been sent for a doctor and was afraid he wouldn't find him at home.

Approaching you as the two paths cross, he will reign up, exchange salutations, study your outfit closely, checking his pony to the slowest of walks, and without asking a question will know just where you are going, what you are going to do and what food you are going to give him if he calls upon you at your evening fire.

Then he is off again, ranging easily in the saddle and soon disappearing from sight. The land from which he came is as empty as that into which he has vanished. There is not a sign of human habitation in either direction.

He has probably come 20 miles since dawn, and will, unless he concludes to camp with you, make another 20 miles before drawing rein.

Still he is a lazy animal. Gathered in groups he furnishes the best subject for picture or study. They do not seem to talk about anything, but sit in the most indolent attitudes, waiting for nothing in particular.

Those mounted keep their seats often for hours at a time, the ponies chiselled like themselves from motionless life. All at once, without any noticeable signal, they will all rise and leave as if all had been waiting for that moment and knew just what to do when it came.

The dress is a mixture of everything white that touches them; the broad hat of the Mexican, the blanket of their own tribe, the trousers of the American—though made of calico as a general thing—and the weapons of the army. Sometimes, indeed, they are better supplied in this latter regard than are the soldiers themselves.

The women, without an effort at solving the problem of skirts, ride astride, and if there is a pony to lead or drive that task is relegated to her inferiority by the lord of her life.

A great deal has been written about the "councils" of the great chiefs, and some ingenuity has been used in picturing the dramatic things done and the heroic things said.

But as a matter of fact the little group presented in this picture is much more like the usual council. So curious and taciturn are the savages that they do not seem to need our loquacity to arrive at a decision.

They sit about silently in straggling groups, exchange a word now and then, with not a vestige of confessed authority, and when they have all arrived at the same mind—though how they know when that time has come no one but them could possibly tell—they drift away as formlessly as they came.

The blood of the Indian is as different and distinct from our own as can possibly be imagined. The nomad in him is not convertible. It is as changeless as are the spots of the leopard. Those few who are home builders seem different.

They seem to hold withing their lives the germ of what development in the white has made civilization. They can and will be made good Indians without the hackneyed method of killing them.

But the nomad is as changeless as is the Tartar. The inhabitants of the lower portions of western Asia were never conquered and never will be. They have never changed and never will.

So the nomads of the American plains will remain savage as long as they live and will present to the advances of the theorist all the immovable wall of nature fortified by ages of heredity.—Chicago Herald.

SUN AND MOON SUPERSTITIONS.

By the Huron Indians the moon is called the creator of the earth and the grandmother to the sun; in the myths of the Ottawas it is an old woman with a pleasant white face, the sister of the day-star. The Chiquitos call the moon their mother, and the Navajos say that it is a white rider on a white mule. In countries where the aborigines worship the planets, preference is usually given the sun. The Botocudos of Brazil give the higher place to the moon, deriving most of the phenomena of nature from it.

The people of Hayti and several tribes in Central and South America held the moon in great veneration. Curiously enough, these people have their counterparts among the tribes of Western, Southern and Central Africa, who rejoice with dancing and feasts at each reappearance of the new moon. They also expect an improvement in their condition from its beneficent influence. Nearly all tribes of South Sea Islanders believe that the sky is a great blue basin inverted over the world. To them the outside of the basin is all fire.

The sun, moon and stars they take to be holes cut in the basin through which a peep at the great outside fire may be had. The Ceylonese believe that the moon and sun are working at cross purposes; that part of the time the sun is dragging the moon across the sky and that afterwards the moon takes her turn at pulling the sun about as she pleases.

A belief existed among the ancient Mexicans, the Natchez of the Mississippi Valley, the Peruvians and the Appalachians of Florida, that the sun was the radiant abode of chiefs and braves who had died in attempting some valorous deed. To the Esquimaux of Labrador belongs the honor of having discovered that the moon was the paradise of the good, and that the wicked are to be consigned to a cold cave in the center of the earth.

Not one in twenty are free from some ailment caused by inaction of the liver. Use Carter's Little Liver Pills. The result will be a pleasant surprise. They give positive relief.

DOG'S CONVERSATION.

Dogs in a native or wild state never bark; they simply whine, howl and growl; the noise which we call barking is found only among those that are domesticated. Columbus found that to be the case with the dogs he first brought to America and left at large, for on his return he tells us that they had lost their propensity to bark. Scientific men say that barking is really an effort on the part of the dog to speak.—Harper's Young People.

IT MAY BE

That you prefer to pay rent for your house than to own one of your own. It may be that you have never taken the time or trouble to figure up what you pay out in rent and how quickly it would pay for a home. Perhaps you don't know how easy it is to become the proud possessor of the "dearest spot on earth." Perhaps you think you must pay all cash when you would buy a home, and if you could not afford to do that you must grovel, and sweat and dig to litt a burden of a mortgage. These are but suggestions. It may be that you do know it is more pleasureable, profitable and comfortable to live in your own home than in some other person's. It may be that you thought about it and come to the conclusion that you do pay out a great deal of rent, and that it does not take very long to pay for a new house at the same rate. It is quite likely that you know a mortgage is perfectly healthy, and that a house with a mortgage is better than no house at all, and that a mortgage is not a burden at all, but in fact a help. Perhaps the only thing you are not positive about is where to build a home, and it is right here we are of assistance.

Know only a comparatively few things thoroughly—all else is more or less uncertain.

Take your own case. What do you know about CARPETS, for instance? Are you competent to detect poor materials, or imperfect weaving, or unreliable colorings, or old-style patterns?

No.

Then will it not be wisdom on your part to make your purchases of CARPETS where all these points are taken care of in your interest, and where you are protected, not only from direct misrepresentation, but from the results of your own inexperience?

That seems plain enough.

Just two things we promise every customer. They are these:

That every salesman shall tell the whole truth about every piece of goods offered for sale; that anything which proves imperfect, through the appearance of any hidden defect subsequent to purchase, shall be made right.

The name of our firm stands behind these two guarantees.

Very likely you are thinking of purchasing one or more CARPETS shortly. If so, consider what we have said.

Since taking the Merchants' many changes have been made, new rooms added, all being furnished entirely new, a splendid and attractive cafe has been placed in what was formerly the office, and the house now shows up in great shape No pains are spared to make the guests comfortable and welcome. You can feel at home in this house, and enjoy its hospitality with satisfaction and economy.
